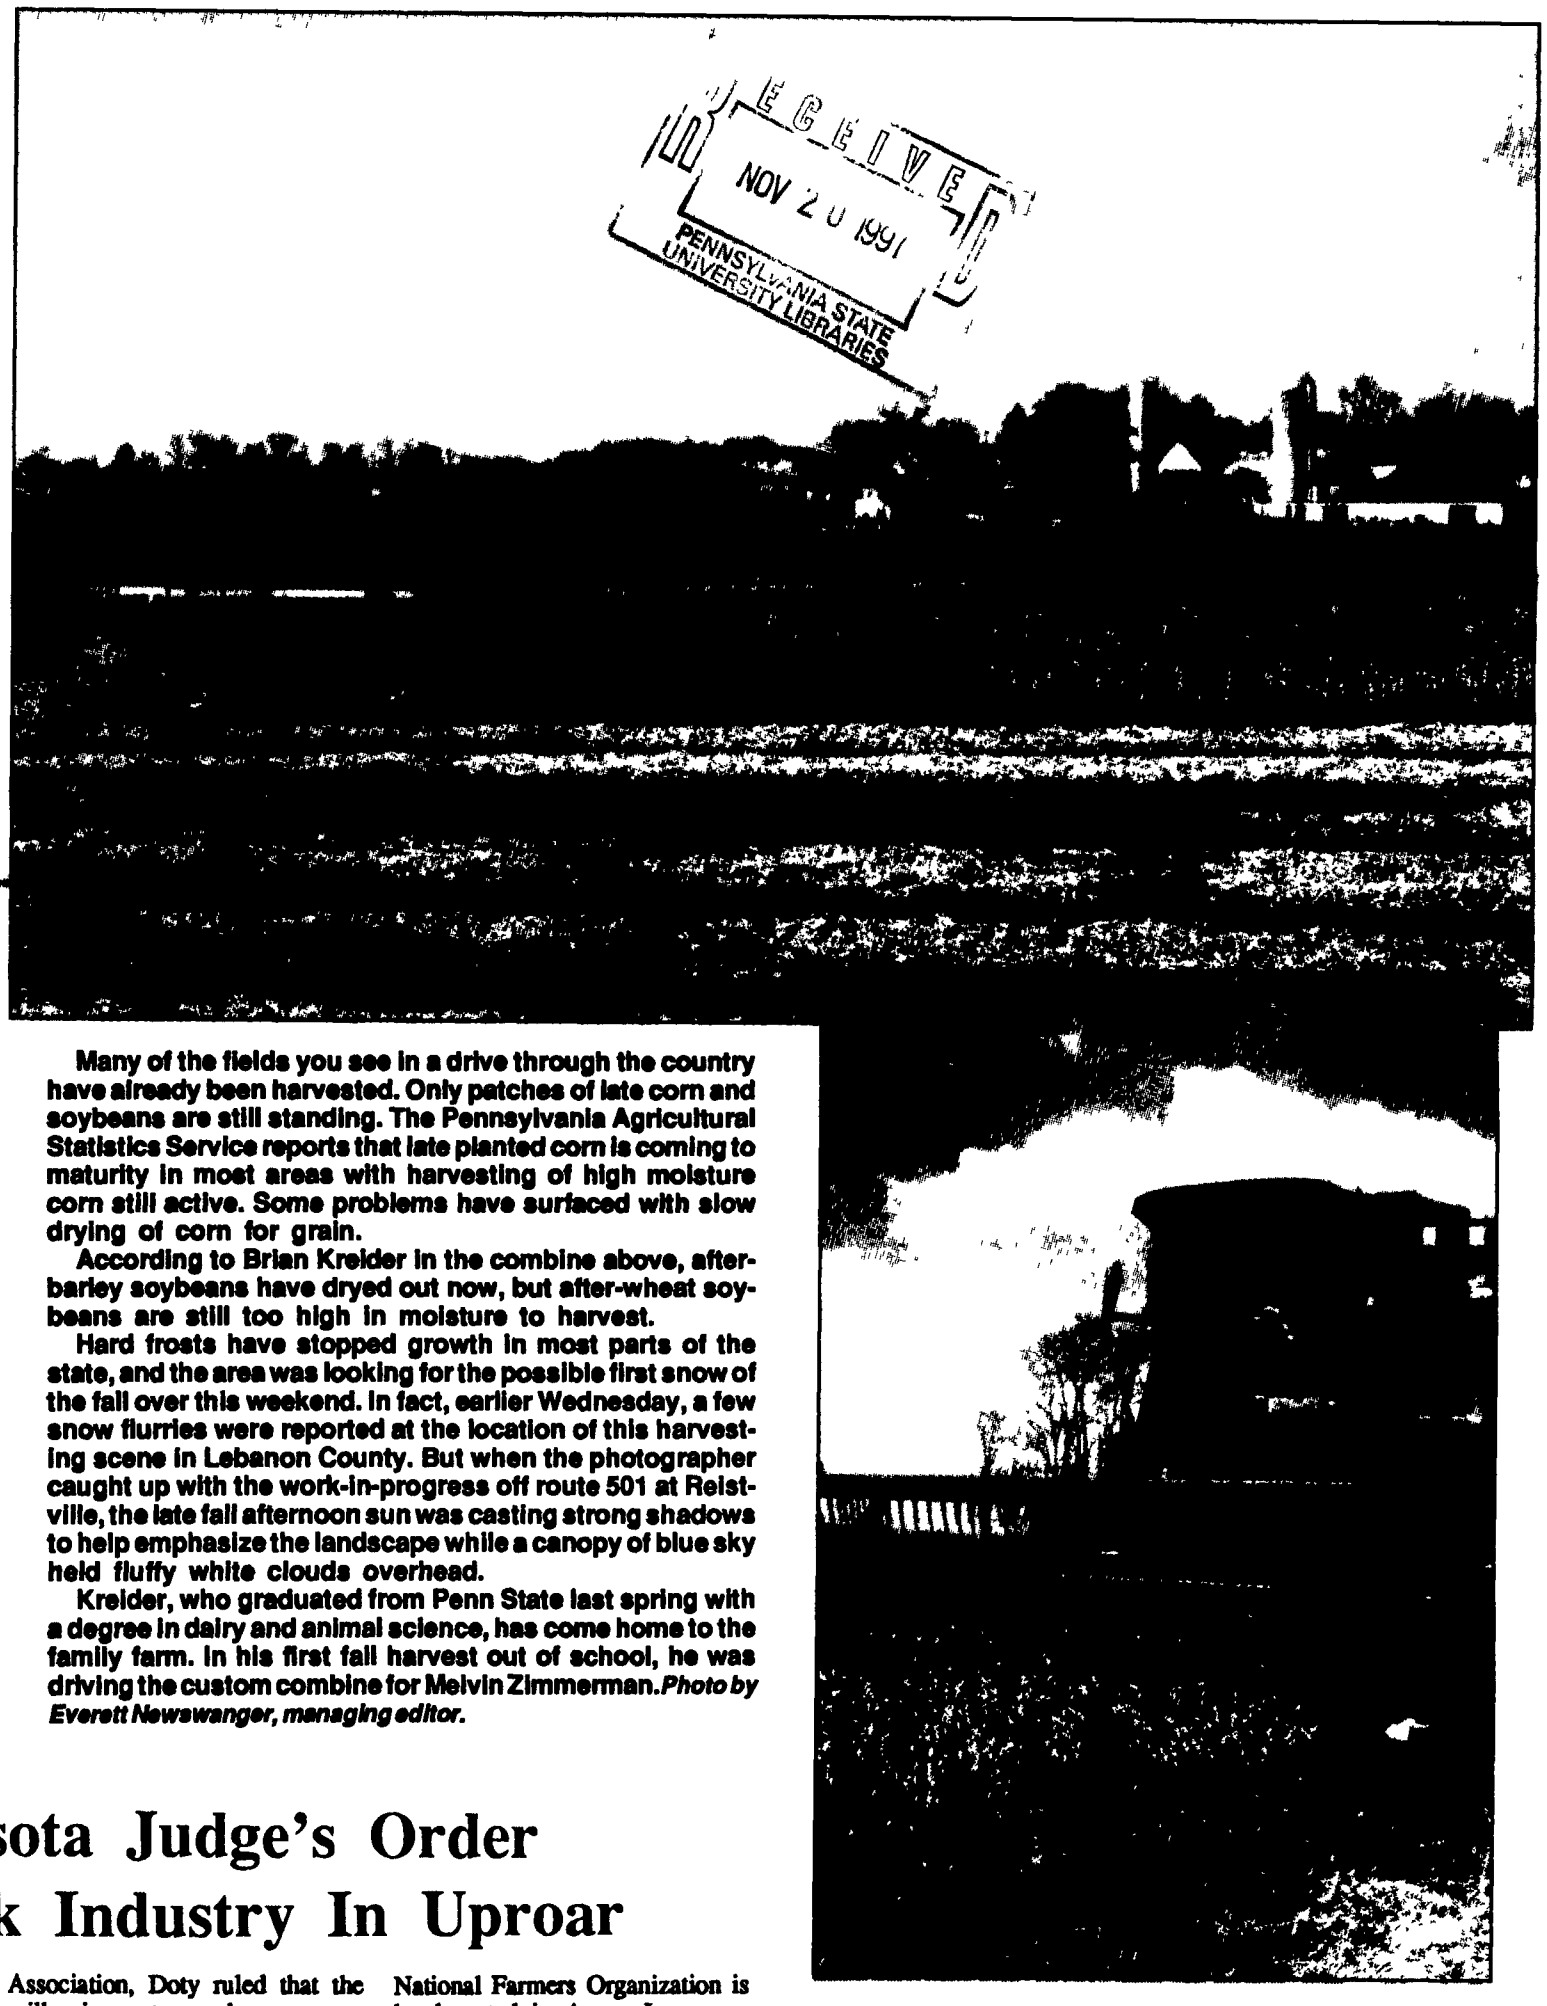
Cow Milks 245 Pounds, Sets World Daily Record

STELLENBOSCH, South Africa — In a posting on Dairy-L on the Internet this week, Dr. Christian Cruywagen, University of Stellenbosch, South Africa, reports that a new daily milk production world record has been recorded right in the university's home town.

A three-and-a-half year-old Friesian/Holstein cow with no glamourous name, only known as 9405, in her second lactation and 66 days in milk, has produced 111.2kg (about 245 pounds) on November 4. This record cow is being milked 4x.

The report noted an interesting side story. The cows owner, Ludwig van Deventer, is not primarily a dairy farmer, but a wine farmer. He decided some years ago to give a number of cows to produce manure for his vineyards. With 9405 eating 36kg of commercial pellets for high producing cows, plus 6kg of alfalfa hay, it can be assumed she is also contributing significantly at the other end towards Ludwig's initial goal.



Many of the fields you see in a drive through the country have already been harvested. Only patches of late corn and soybeans are still standing. The Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service reports that late planted corn is coming to maturity in most areas with harvesting of high moisture corn still active. Some problems have surfaced with slow drying of corn for grain.

According to Brian Kreider in the combine above, after-barley soybeans have dryed out now, but after-wheat soybeans are still too high in moisture to harvest.

Hard frosts have stopped growth in most parts of the state, and the area was looking for the possible first snow of the fall over this weekend. In fact, earlier Wednesday, a few snow flurries were reported at the location of this harvesting scene in Lebanon County. But when the photographer caught up with the work-in-progress off route 501 at Reistville, the late fall afternoon sun was casting strong shadows to help emphasize the landscape while a canopy of blue sky held fluffy white clouds overhead.

Kreider, who graduated from Penn State last spring with a degree in dairy and animal science, has come home to the family farm. In his first fall harvest out of school, he was driving the custom combine for Melvin Zimmerman. Photo by Everett Newswanger, managing editor.

Avian Quarantine Lifted

Minnesota Judge's Order Has Milk Industry In Uproar

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

WASHINGTON, DC — Late last week U.S. Minnesota District Judge David Doty threw out a Depression-era system of 32 milk marketing orders that pay farmers a price differential for milk based on their distance from Eau Claire, Wis. The ruling that a key portion of the country's milk pricing policy is illegal eliminates federal order class I differentials to all but a few geographic areas in the Southeast.

In the eight-year-old lawsuit by the Minnesota Milk Producers Association, Doty ruled that the milk price system makes no sense. Farmers from the Upper Midwest have complained for years that the system was outdated and discriminated against them. But dairy farmers outside Minnesota and Wisconsin like the system the way it is. They don't want to lose what they've got.

"Upper Midwest political leaders and Judge Doty don't fully realize the negative economic impact this will have on producers in their own home states," said Gene Paul, National Farmers president. The National Farmers Organization is headquarted in Ames, Iowa.

"Many Minnesota and Wisconsin dairy producers are unaware that they will (also) lose approximately $55 million annually. The ruling is critically important because current producer pay prices are not high enough to cover their expenses to produce it," Paul said.

Because of the immediate uncertainty the ruling rendered, some milk handlers were already refusing to pay established farmer

National Egg Market
ATLANTA, GA
NOVEMBER 12, 1997

NATIONAL EGG MARKET - AT A GLANCE:

Prices were unchanged to higher east of the Rockies, and unchanged elsewhere. The market tone remained steady to firm. Demand ranged moderate to very good, mostly good, and best where features were either planned or already in progress prior to upcoming holidays. Supplies were short to adequate and floor stocks were often intentionally increased in anticipation of upcoming holiday needs. Breaking stock supplies were also short to instances adequate, and additional offerings were limited for the mixed demand. Offerings of light type fowl were generally adequate for slaughter schedules.

DELMARVA BROILER/FRYER MARKET. FEDERAL-STATE

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was generally noted as no better than fair. Seller offerings were fully adequate and easily handled current trade needs. Live supplies were moderate, with weights mosty desirable. Processing schedules were moderately heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 48 to 62 cents. Trade sentiment was cautiously steady. In the parts complex, offerings of boneless/skinless breasts were difficult to place, while large wings were difficult to find. Other items were for the most part generally balanced.

USDA-MO Dept Ag Market News

corrections on Kansas City soybean bid, Jan Futures and KC Gulf bid for Tuesday 11/11/97

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY

Grain and soybean bids lost some of Tuesday's gains due to light profit taking on the board, slow export demand and increased farmer selling of corn and beans. Wheat 2 to 5 cents lower. Corn 1 to 3 cents lower. Sorghum 1 to 5 cents lower. Soybeans 5 to 7 cents lower. Wheat bids fell slightly lower today following a lower corn and bean market. Export demand has been light this week for wheat and reports Tunisia bought 5.5 million bushels of optional origin wheat, added pressure. Lower corn and soybean bids were a reaction to harvest pressure, lack of foreign orders, and a pick up in farmer selling. Increased crop production estimates by USDA and private sources also weighed on bids. Profit taking was noted on the board. Indications that South Korea may have bought some US corn overnight, limited losses in corncorn.

Weakness in soybean meal bids added more pressure to bean bids.

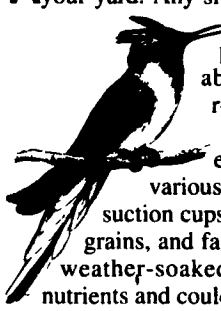
The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

NOVEMBER 17-23, 1997

MOON RIDES HIGH, NOV. 17.

FOR THE BIRDS

As the weather turns colder, look to your bird feeders and invite your feathered friends to winter over in your yard. Any simple construction of a flat surface, possibly lipped at the edges to prevent spillage and allow a suitable perch, will suffice. A simple roof keeps the weather off. If you have cats, place the feeder high enough to be out of reach. There are various window varieties that attach with suction cups. Offer a wide range of seeds, nuts, grains, and fat, but do not allow sodden bread or weather-soaked feed, which will be lacking in nutrients and could harm the birds' stomachs.



A bird is known by his feathers.

– Yiddish proverb

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Keep a field guide (birds, wildflowers, etc.) next to your computer or phone and consult it while you're waiting.

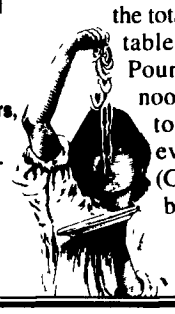
NUTTY NOODLES

- 4 to 5 tablespoons peanut butter
- juice of 1 lemon
- 3 teaspoons soy sauce
- 3 teaspoons peanut oil (optional)
- 1 tablespoon toasted sesame seeds
- 1 tablespoon water
- 1 scant cup finely chopped cucumbers, scallions, peppers, or carrots or a mixture (optional)
- 4 to 5 cups cooked spaghetti noodles

Whisk together the first six ingredients in a bowl, or whirl in a blender. Add any combination of the chopped vegetables, if desired, keeping the total quantity of vegetables less than a cup. Pour over the cooked noodles and mix well to distribute sauce evenly. Serve cold. (Great for kids' lunch boxes!)

Makes 4 to 6 servings.



The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Thunder in November, a fertile year to come.

If there's ice in November that will bear a duck, there'll be nothing thereafter but sleet and muck.

A heavy November snow will last until April.

Cats remaining indoors, devoid of vivacity, forecast wet or windy weather.

OPINION

International Farm Labeling Proposal Raises Concerns

When dealing with exports, the United States needs to remain steadfast in its position that a product does not require additional labeling unless there are scientifically established issues of safety.

The background on this thought comes from the national farm organizations that have asked the Clinton adminstration not to give in to the European Union Commission's plan to label imports of genetically modified grain.

While details on how Europe's proposed labeling system would be developed and implemented are not known, officials of the farm groups said they are extremely concerned by the apparent change in policy direction the plan reflects. "If implemented, it appears the new system would institute a labeling regime based solely on production and process rather than a science and health-based approach, which could be misleading to consumers," the officials said.

According the the September 1 issue of Farm Bureau News, at issue are genetically engineered corn and soybean seeds, bred to withstand herbicide application and natural pest infestations. Both have been tested extensively and approved for planting and consumption in the United States by all relevant regulatory agencies. Despite this, European environmental and consumer groups have spoken out against imports of the products.

The United States and the EU both officially recognize that the use of bio-technology to produce a food or food product does not necessarily change its quality, safety, or nutritional composition. The EU had originally approved two genetically modified crops for importation with no labeling requirements based on a scientific review that determined they were substantially equivalent to products derived from non-genetically modified sources.

Farm exports are of such importance to both farm income and the national balance of trade that we agree with the national farm organizations. Labeling based on genetically modified organism content alone, and not on sound science, would likely raise unwarranted questions about the safety of these products among consumers.

On this issue, our national government leaders should not give in to international pressure that would base labeling of farm products on anything other than creditable scientific research.

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Do Soil Testing

Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agronomy Agent, reminds us soil testing is a very important activity. A regular program of testing farm fields is a must in today's regulatory environment. After a few years of regular testing to establish a base line information on fields, it is not necessary to test every field each year.

Anderson suggests the field should be tested every time the crop to be grown changes. If crops are not being rotated, then the field should be tested every third or fourth year. This allows you to monitor the nutrient levels in the soil.

If the level of nutrients increases over time, fertilizer applications may be reduced. If nutrient levels are falling, additional fertilizer may be needed to keep soils productive.

When taking soil samples, send them to the same lab each year. This gives you more accurate data to look at soil fertility trends over years. Pennsylvania farmers should consider sending their samples to the Penn State lab. Fertilizer recommendations made by Penn State are based on research done in Pennsylvania under Pennsylvania growing conditions.

To Clean Sprayer

A job which should be done as soon as the crop sprayer has been used for the last time for the season is cleaning and winterization, according to Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agronomy Agent.

To clean a sprayer, mix a sudsy detergent solution using about one quarter pound of powder or equivalent amount of liquid detergent for each 25 gallons of water. Run this solution through the sprayer washing all internal parts. This should remove the residues of most pesticides with the exception of the hormone type herbicides like 2,4-D, banvel, etc.

If these materials were used, add one quart of ammonia for each 25 gallons of water. Another material you could use is one half pound of activated charcoal for each 25 gallons.

To Protect Sprayer From Freezing

After cleaning the sprayer, it will need to be protected from freezing. An easy way to do this is by adding an RV type antifreeze solution to the sprayer. The RV type antifreeze is non-toxic and easy to dispose of in the spring.

Alfalfa growers waiting until the winter annual weed control program is done before cleaning their sprayer should protect sprayer parts from freezing. A gallon or two of RV antifreeze will do an excellent job at a reasonable cost. Automotive types of antifreeze will do the job but they may cause environmental problems if spilled or when beginning to use the sprayer next spring.

HOW TO STRENGTHEN YOUR HAND
November 16, 1997

Background Scripture:
Nehemiah 1 through 2
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 146:1-10

I wonder whether Nehemiah thought of himself as a leader? You might answer, "Of Course, he thought of himself as a leader, why else would he do what he did?"

We tend to think that way because (1) we think that leaders are born, not made and (2) we weren't born to be leaders. We fail to realize that many people who assume roles of leadership do so, not because they necessarily want to or feel qualified, but because there is a job to do and they realize someone must take the initiative.

When I was in my first pastorate just outside Harrisburg, Pa., I was on my way to the Polyclinic Hospital one day to visit a parishoner. On the way I witnessed a terrible accident in which a woman crossing the street was hit by a car and thrown up into the air. All of us brought our cars to a stop and jumped out to see what happened. The woman lay in the street, a bleeding, broken body that was still breathing. All the drivers looked at each other, expecting someone to take over and help her until an ambulance could get there. But no one stepped forward.

SURELY SOMEONE ELSE

I confess that I was squeamish and assumed that surely someone would take the initiative. But nobody did. So, not because I wanted to, not because I thought I was the one best prepared to help her, but because it was obvious no one else was going to make a move, I stooped and began to minister to her as best I could. Eventually the ambulance arrived and they took her away.

I did not see how she could possibly survive this terrible accident. But several days later, I saw her in the hospital and she had not only survived but would recover completely, I was told.

Now I mention this incident only because I'm sure we all find ourselves in situations when we ask or wonder, "Why doesn't someone do something about that?" The very fact that we are perceptive enough to ask the question often means that we are the ones who may have to provide the answer. We may think that there is someone else who surely can do a better job than we — and quite possibly there is — but that is no excuse not to do what we can do.

We will never know if Nehemiah thought of himself as a leader, but maybe he saw something that had to be done and realized that, if it was going to be done, he would have to do it. Of course, Nehemiah did not have to do this task all by himself, but he had to get the job started so that others could pitch in.

IN A POSITION TO HELP

He started with the king he served in the very trusted position of cupbearer. Kings were always afraid of being poisoned so their cupbearers had to be men in whom they could entrust their lives. So, Nehemiah, although he may not have felt that he had leadership skills, was in a position to do something and he did it.

Don't think for a moment that it was easy for Nehemiah. He knew he was sticking his neck out by bringing up this subject to the King. "Then," he says, "I was very much afraid" (2:2). Despite his position as cupbearer to the king, he knew this request could cost his position, perhaps even his life. Leadership calls us and there is no guarantee that it won't cost us to respond to that call.

Nehemiah doesn't tell us if he was gifted, handsome, a good speaker or possessor of a powerful physique. What enabled him to lead the people in Israel in the reconstruction of the walls of Jerusalem was his understanding of people and his sincerity. "You see the trouble we are in, how Jerusalem lies in ruins . . . Come, let us build the wall of Jerusalem, that we may no longer suffer disgrace" (2:17). He tells us that they responded to his challenge, saying "'Let us rise up and build.' So they strengthened their hands for the good work" (2:18).

How do you strengthen your hands for a good work? Answer: you put your trust in God and he will provide power enough for the task.

ATTENTION TOBACCO FARMERS

Don't Straight Strip

MAKE 3 GRADES •Ground Leaves •Middles •Tips

We will be receiving tobacco on Dec. 1, 2, 3, 4 & 5. We want your tobacco on the floor to show our buyers and tobacco companies that week.

We are expecting more and bigger buyers. In the past we were always competitive with any price buyer – no matter what the price has been. At Paradise Sale Barn we still think we should be getting $1.92/lb.

Call Mitch White for trucking. We want to set up a pretty floor that week.

MADISON, WI. November 12, 1997 FLUID CREAM AND CONDENSED SKIM PRICES IN TANKLOT QUANTITIES:

SPOT PRICES OF CLASS II CREAM, DOLLARS PER LB. BUTTERFAT: F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast - 2.0286-2.2050 Delivered Equivalent: Atlanta - 2.0286-2.2092 M 2.0580-2.2050

PRICES OF CLASS II CONDENSED SKIM, DOLLARS PER LB. WET SOLIDS: F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast - 1.0000-1.0350

Milk production ranges from higher in Florida and other Gulf Coast States, to a little lower in the northernmost areas. Cooler weather and the addition of cows to herds are cited for the jump in milk output in Florida.

This week, Florida handlers imported about 57 loads and most of those were brought in early in the week. There were no imports late in the week. In New England, New York, and the Middle Atlantic areas, milk output is mostly steady and fluid milk supplies range from relatively tight to fully adequate.

Demand for Grade A milk for Class I needs is generally steady, but ranges from slow to improved. Some schools were closed for Veteran's Day and other states are having two-day teacher conferences which are disrupting school lunch milk bottling. Diversions of surplus milk to manufacturing channels are limited in the Southeast and about steady elsewhere.

Manufacturing plants are starting to prepare for the Thanksgiving rush of milk, but most contacts think volumes will be easily handled. The condensed skim market is quite good. Prices are steady to lower and demand is often reported as good. Some loads are moving greater distances to fill demand.

Although not unheard of, it is unusual for November's Class III milk prices to be above Class II. Therefore, prices of condensed skim moving to Class II customers are often higher than loads moving to Class III users. The fluid cream market is firm. Suppliers are tight and prices unchanged to higher.

Demand seemed to improve after the CME butter prices did not change last week. Multiples are often higher, particularly as the week progressed. Ice cream output is seasonally slower because of the high cost of cream/butterfat. Some producers have switched to other products and others are using alternatives in their formulations.

Cream cheese and sour cream production is holding up fairly well. Although prices for cream are very high, they do have orders that have to be filled. Egg nog production is gearing up in more plants. Churning activity is steady to heavier. Some butter makers are looking for more cream and offering very competitive prices

WE HAVE STIR AERATOR TO HELP WITH

FLY & ODOR CONTROL

BIG PERFORMANCE...SMALL PRICE

SIMPLE PROCEDURE: the aerator works directly into the bed of material, forming its own windrow. Windrows can be formed from piles of nearly any size. Alleyways are not required when using the Brown aerator, so there is a great reduction in space requirements. The aerator's reverse rotation works the material from the bottom up, and to the side, assuring complete mixing and agitation. LOW MAINTENANCE: the aerator is a simple design, the principle as a material mover has been proven with over 30 years experience in practical application. The aerator is hydraulically driven and equipped with patented wearplates or paddles, both of which are easily replaced.

Emergence is excellent for a strong, fast start and this variety also adapts well to conventional and no-till environments. To help you manage this performance, AG3001 is Roundup Ready™, providing flexible and effective herbicide control.

AG3601 is a mid-group III variety that has shown high yields and good disease resistance, including Phytophthora root rot. Adaptable and solid, AG3601 is also Roundup Ready™ and an STS® variety with tolerance to sulfonylurea herbicides.

State Agriculture Secretary Announces Action Plan

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes Jr. on Thursday unveiled the first-ever "action plan" for the state agriculture department.

In a presentation to representatives of the state's farm media, Hayes presented the plan with the caveat that it be understood that the approximately 80 goals outlined in the "plan" have not been assigned a priority and that the document is to be an ongoing, regularly updated plan.

According to Secretary Hayes, the plan was developed through discussions with senior staff and bureau directors and was done to develop a list of specific goals that provide an overall program for work effort.

The action plan is the first draft of what Hayes said is to become a constantly redrafted document. He said while time lines are being developed for each of the items in the plan, they aren't as important as getting a list of department goals written down.

Since taking office in June, Hayes has been working to gear up the department and help bring its mission into clearer and more relevant focus.

He said that without such focus and coordination that it is difficult if not impossible to be aggressive in promoting and helping to develop the state's agricultural sector.

Well aware of the historically recent, significant changes in international governments and trade, Hayes has expressed a strong desire to develop the PDA into a modern, effective support organization capable of carrying out its original mission — to promote the marketing of Pennsylvania's agricultural commodities. (PDA was not originally designed to be a regulatory agency, though those responsibilities have been added over the years.)

In a cover letter to the action plan, Hayes states that better development and promotion of Pennsylvania's agricultural production is key to the economic health of the state.

"Governor Tom Ridge wants Pennsylvania to be a leader among states. And so do I. And so do you. Together, we can help get it done through our Pennsylvania agriculture."

After emphasizing the importance of agriculture as the foundation business of Pennsylvania community and culture, he said that the department is ready to provide the help needed to get the job done to really help provide opportunities, instead of talking about them.

"I want professional agriculture and the citizens of Pennsylvania to know by this initiative their Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture is prepared to display leadership, to step forward, to be a part-

SRBC Revises Drought Watch Declaration

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — At a meeting in Camp Hill, PA, the Susquehanna River Basin Commission SRBC) today took the following action to revise its basinwide drought watch declaration, which was initially issued on July 17:

- lifted the drought watch in 23 counties (13 in NY, 21 in PA, and 2 in MD);
- retained the drought watch in 23 counties (4 in NY, 17 in PA, and 2 in MD)
- upgraded portions of six counties to drought warning (PA — Berks, Carbon, Chester, Schuylkill, and Wayne; and NY — Delaware)

"Above normal precipitation from storms over the last several weeks has alleviated or reduced many of the drought conditions in the western half of the Susquehanna basin, allowing us to lift the drought watch in 36 counties," said Paul Swartz, SRBC's executive director. "However, drought watch conditions persist in the eastern half, despite the precipitation events. Therefore, we are maintaining the watch in 23 counties."

The commission also upgraded portions of six counties to drought warning: Berks, Carbon, Chester, Schuylkill and Wayne Counties in PA and Delaware County in NY. Except for Schuylkill County, these six countie lie almost entirely in the Delaware River Basin, all of whose counties have been under a drought warning declaration since Oct. 27.

SRBC's drought watch and warning call for voluntary water conservation from its individual water users to reduce demand to 10 percent and urges public water suppliers and industrial users to follow any existing drought contingency or water shortage plans.

Swartz said, "At this time of the year, voluntary water conservation is focused primarily on indoor uses, since many outdoor uses are significantly reduced."

Indoor water conservation measures include:

- Replacing leaking and dripping faucets immediately.
- Taking shorter showers.
- Using washing machines and dishwashers only when loads are full.
- Not running water while shaving, brushing teeth, or washing dishes by hand.
- Installing new shower heads and sink faucets equipped with water saving devices, such as aerators or spray taps.
- Replacing older toilets that use more water with newer, low-consumption toilets.
- Refrigerating tap water to avoid running the faucet for a long period to get cold water.

The Susquehanna River Basin Commission is the governing agency established under a 100-year compact signed on Dec. 24, 1970 by the federal government and the states fo New York, Pennsylvania and Maryland to protect and wisely manage the water resources of the Susquehanna River Basin. The Susquehanna River starts in Cooperstown, NY and flows 444 miles to Havre de Grace, MD, where the river meets the Chesapeake Bay.

Extension Service Doing Lot Of 'Moving, Shaking'

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

EXTON (Chester Co.) — Extension Service looks a lot different these days in Pennsylvania than it does in Massachusetts.

In 1994, the "bottom fell out" at the Massachusetts Cooperative Extension Service, according to Gary San Julian, regional director of Penn State Cooperative Extension Southeast Region, leaving two counties that have extension agents with a staff of only 11.

Meanwhile, Penn State has been retooling and redirecting the focus and reach of extension, moving from four regions in the state to eight, going in "new directions," according to Dr. Robert D. Steele, dean of the Penn State College of Agricultural Sciences.

Steele spoke to about 200 extension members and friends on Monday evening at the Chester County Cooperative Extension's annual meeting at J & J Caterers, Exton.

Several extension agents were honored at the banquet. From left, Anna Mae Hughes, EFNEP staff, was honored for her work in helping people make more nutritious choices for themselves and their children. Betty Lou Lusky, staff assistant, was honored with her work in programs in cooperative support. Lou Middleton, extension agent, horticulture, was honored for her work with growers and master gardeners in the county. Toni M. Stuetz, extension agent/youth, was honored for her work on 125 different youth projects.

Steele, who has been dean of the college since July this year, received his doctorate from the University of Wisconsin in Madison, Wis.

At the banquet, Steele reviewed the history and evolving philosophy of the land grant tradition since it began in 1862, asking those who attended, "Is this the same system we want to carry us on into the next century?"

As issues evolve, the extension service must adapt accordingly. In the 1860s, Steele said, "educating the public was the key to facing issues and solving problems." The Hatch Act of 1887 allowed money to flow from Washington to Pennsylvania and other states to come up with ways to solve problems in agriculture. In 1914, legislation was passed to create a system where that knowledge could be passed readily to the general public.

However, fewer people than ever before remain active in farming. "Many feel (Extension) is no longer important . . . (that we) don't need the Extension Service anymore," said Steele.

However, Penn State believes that the rewards that Extension Service can provide will be "great into the next century."

Penn State believes in reaffirmation of the mission of the land grand commitment — "to bring the full resources of the university to bear on issues we'll be facing today," not just one segment of the college, such as the College of Ag or Cooperative Extension.

To do so, the original four regions have been carved into eight separate regions, with new directions and primary activities. Steele noted that the university has redirected itself to open windows to other resources of the university, including the school of medicine, engineering, and others.

Penn State at University Park now boasts an enrollment of 40,000 students. The focus in the next several years will be to "build additional enrollment on different campuses," noted Steele.

The beauty of the system continues, noted Steele, when he indicated that for the past 135 years, the land-grant system working with the university has educated people, educated students, and "trained tomorrow's leaders," he said. As the country's population grows, Penn State will work to address new issues.

"How are we going to do it?" he said. "We're going to generate new knowledge."

Steele said the college will allow people to "create and discover the technologies of tomorrow to handle these issues.

"There will be a lot of moving and shaking going on at University Park," he said. "We think we're moving in the right direction."

Several extension agents were honored at the banquet. Lou Middleton, extension agent, horticulture, was honored for her work with growers and master gardeners in the county. Toni M. Stuetz, extension agent/youth, was honored for her work on 125 different youth projects. Betty Lou Lusky, staff assistant, was

Animal Housing Expo Features Nationally-Known Experts

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Northeast farmers can learn more about how to remodel and expand their livestock, dairy and poultry facilities at the sixth annual Animal Housing Expo. The Expo will be held November 18-19 at the Lebanon Fairgrounds, Lebanon, Pa. It is sponsored by Penn State Cooperative Extension and various agri-businesses. Hours are 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Admission is free.

Designing and constructing animal housing facilities is a major financial commitment. It is something that many farmers will do only once or twice in their farming career. Thus, it should be done right the first time. The building and remodeling decisions farmers make today will have a significant impact on how competitive their business will be in the years to come. It will affect the health and productivity of their herd or flock, worker output, public relations, cash flow and farm profits.

Farmers should take time to look at a lot of different facilities and talk to a lot of people before they make major remodeling and expansion decisions. The Animal Housing Expo helps farmers in the Northeast accomplish this by providing them an opportunity to:

— Visit with approximately 40 different commercial exhibitors who can supply the products and services they might need,

— Hear presentations by nationally-known and local experts and producers,

— Observe a variety of educational demonstrations and exhibits, and — Share ideas with other farmers in attendance.

This year's program features swine topics on the 18th and dairy topics November 18th and 19th.

Primary speakers include John W. Ferry, a veterinarian and financial consultant from Belleville, New York and Larry Jacobsen, Agricultural Engineer from the University of Minnesota. Panels ner," he stated in the cover letter.

State Agriculture Secretary Announces Action Plan

"We have more inventive ideas; but now, it is time to receive the thoughts of our partners. I invite the General Assembly, professional agriculture, and the citizens of Pennsylvania to join in suggesting additional ideas for our Action Plan for Pennsylvania Agriculture. For sure, we should nuture our agriculture together."

With the assistance of a computer video presentation on the Action Plan accomplished through the work of Al Bowman, a staff member of the PDA Press Office with computer knowledge, Secretary Hayes went through each of the 80 items, expanding on some, and noting some of the more prominent, as well as those already achieved.

While the details of action for each action goal are not specifically worked out, the general theme of the goal statements is understandable.

While Hayes said that none of the listed goals are more important than the other, some are naturally shorter-term goals and others will require longer term effort.

Some of the highlights include holding an annual "Secretary's Summit on Agriculture, which will serve as an ongoing symposium to address all aspects of agriculture, to include profitability."

The action plan is comprised of statements dealing with almost every segment of agricultural production and ways to help it become better.

As an example of recent successes, to illustrate the difference between setting up a governmental structure to address a concern and setting up a governmental structure to provide results, Hayes noted the success the PDA has had in attracting more attention to its internet "homepage."

(A "homepage" is a computer "site" on the Internet dedicated to a specific subject or owner.)

According to Hayes, while the department has had an Internet homepage for some time, it didn't previously provide as much customer-usefull information.

Whereas it provided statistics and data and information, it now provides more useful information, such as manuals and regulations that can be downloaded and applications for permits and licenses that can be completed and filed, saving time and effort for the user.

Every time that someone using a computer on the Internet gains access to the PDA homepage, it is recorded as a "hit." This means their is an audience.

Currently, "hits" are being used as a subjective measure of success among those trying to figure out how to profit from the Internet. It is generally agreed that merely recording "hits" doesn't mean profit or customer satisfaction, but more of the potential for such to occur — the more people who enter the doors of a business the more likely a sale will occur.

Hayes said that while having some way to measure success is desirable, so that success can be reported and people can know if their money is being used wisely, it is not always easy to do or even possible.

However, he noted that prior to changing the department's homepage, they had received about 3,000 "hits" per month.

After adding the permit and license application forms, as well as information, they have seen a first-month increase to 9,000 hits.

There is no order of importance in any of the goals listed int he action plan, and the fact that certain goals have been identified

PFB Hails Passage Of Homestead Exemption

CAMP HILL (Dauphin Co.) — The leader of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau (PFB) is hailing the passage of the homestead exemption referendum in last Tuesday's statewide election as "the opportunity for local tax reform we've been working to get for years."

PFB president Guy Donaldson said, "We're elated with the voters' overwhelming support of the referendum." Almost two-thirds of the voters approved a proposed state constitutional amendment which clears the way for reductions in property taxes. "Our organization supported a 'Yes' vote and many of our members campaigned hard for its passage," said Donaldson. "Now the door has been opened and the General Assembly will be moving ahead on tax reform.

"There will be a lot of details to be decided and Pennsylvania Farm Bureau will be watching to make sure that tax reform brings tax relief to farmers. It was documented decades ago that farmers are bearing a disproportionate share of the property tax load under the current system."

One of Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's goals will be to include a "farmstead" property tax reduction for farm buildings on the home farm in the enabling legislation that will be written to implement the "homestead" tax exemption. "Leadership in both the House and Senate have assured us that a 'farmstead' provision will be a part of the final tax reform package," Donaldson said. "Our support for a 'Yes' vote hinged on that promise.

"Farmers are paying too much in property taxes and need to see those tax bills come down. A 'farmstead' exemption is a suitable way to accomplish that goal."

Under the homestead exemption, local taxing districts will be able to exempt part of a homeowner's assessed value on their home from property taxes. The General Assembly will have to approve alternative methods for local governments to replace revenues lost due to property tax reductions. Voters will have final approval on any proposed changes in their local tax system.

"The first step has been taken," said Donaldson. "The voters have cleared the way for property tax reform. Now's it's up to the General Assembly to turn that vote into tax reform. We'll be working hard to make sure it provides a remedy for farmers' overtaxation."

Quality Forage Conference Set

TUNKHANNOCK (Wyoming Co.) — On Tuesday morning, Nov. 18, the 1997 Quality Forages Conference will get under way here at the Shadowbrook Inn and Convention Center.

The conference will bring together speakers, specialists, and producers from around the northeast United States.

The conference is being organized by a committee involving regional Penn State Cooperative Extension offices, cooperating farm advisory committees, and the Endless Mountains and Pocono Resource Development and Conservation Services. The Pennsylvania Forage and Grasslands Council together with Northeast Farm Credit, ACA are sponsoring the meeting and providing refreshment breaks. Ag business and service providers will be on hand to exhibit their trade.

Forage quality is, and will continue to be, of utmost importance in an area such as northeastern Pennsylvania where the primary market for our forages is through a livestock enterprise.

At this time, more than a half million forage producing acres exist in northeast Pennsylvania. Since the late 1980s that acreage has decreased approximately 10 percent while livestock numbers have remained comparatively constant. The ability of farmers in this region to market quality forages through livestock products will have a very large and direct influence on the economic well-being of their farms, agribusinesses, and the greater economic community at large.

Forage producers attending the meeting will better understand how management affects forage quality. The conference aims to cover many aspects of forage management from production to harvesting to storing and to feeding quality forages.

Preregistration is required. The $15 registration fee will provide refreshments, lunch, and the conference proceedings to each individual.

Following the Keynote Address by John Rogers, Pennsylvania dairyman and past president of the American Forage and Grassland Council, participants can choose among breakout sessions in one of two conference tracks. One track will follow a program more suited to producers who pasture their livestock while another track will focus on the mechanically harvested issues of managing quality forages.

The agenda is as follows;

8 a.m. - Doors open for Sponsors and Exhibitors

9-9:25 a.m. - Registration and Visits with exhibitors

9:30-10:15 a.m. - Keynote Address - Jim Rogers, Pennsylvania Dairyman and past President of American Forage and Grassland Council

10:15-11 a.m. - Mechanical Track - The Impact of Forage Particle Length on Intake, Dr. Harold Harpster, Penn State University

10:15-11 a.m. - Pasture Track - Pasture Fertility, Dr. Doug Beegle, Penn State University

11-11:45 a.m. - Mechanical Track - Using Preservatives and Additives in Forage Production, Richard Lutz, Pioneer, Inc.

11-11:45 a.m. - Pasture Track - Feed Budgeting, Dr. Lisa Holden, Penn State University

Noon-1 p.m. - Lunch & Visit with Exhibitors

1:10-1:55 p.m. - New Zealand: Not all that Glitters is Gold, Dr. Marvin Hall, Penn State University

1:55-2:05 p.m. - Refreshments, Courtesy of Northeastern Farm Credit

2:05-2:50 p.m. - Mechanical Track - Reading and Understanding Forage Sample Reports, Kathy Soder, Ph.D. Candidate, Penn State Dairy and Animal Science

2:05-2:50 p.m. - Pasture Track - Comparison Pasture Types to Extend the Grazing Season, Dr. John Comerford, Penn State University

2:50-3:15 p.m. - Panel discussion with today's presenters

3:15 p.m. - Adjourn

Rep. Coy Introduces Alternate To Bottle Bill

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — In an effort to address farmers' concerns about damage suffered from discarded bottles and cans, Rep. Jeff Coy plans to introduce legislation that will serve as an alternative to the controversial "bottle bill."

"The time has come for an alternative remedy to assist farmers who suffer significant economic losses due to bottle and can litter. The problem is very real and needs to be addressed once and for all. However, we must also satisfy the concerns of those who disagree with the effectiveness of a returnable container deposit law," said Coy, who wrote this Wednesday to Department of Environmental Protection Secretary James Seif and Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes encouraging them to

Maryland, Virginia MPCA Promotes, Hires Employees

RESTON, Va. — Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative Association Inc. recently promoted Troye Cooper, from Mercersburg, to hauling and transportation assistant.

In addition, Robert Burruss, from Orange, Virginia, was hired as a field representative for several counties in northern and east-central Virginia.

As the hauling and transportation assistant, Cooper is to be responsible for receiving milk orders from customer dairies, and for scheduling milk routes to match customer needs. He will serve as a liaison between milk haulers and the cooperative, and will assist in preparing annual production and sales estimates.

Cooper has operated the meter truck for Maryland and Virginia for almost two years. In this position, he helped to train over 100 drivers with quality assurance and proper milk pick-up procedures, and is familiar with over 200 milk routes in the cooperative's five-state area. In addition, he has been responsible for helping to implement the fax manifest system with Maryland and Virginia's 35 haulers.

Prior to working for Maryland and Virginia, Cooper worked in southern Franklin County as a sales manager for Agri-King and an AI technician for Atlantic Breeders Cooperative. During college, he had an internship with Franklin Laboratories, Fort Dodge, Iowa, as a sales representative.

A 1993 graduate of the Pennsylvania State University, Cooper received a bachelor's degree in dairy and animal science, and was active in the Delta Theta Sigma fraternity. He grew up in Berks County, where he worked on a large dairy operation for many years. Cooper replaces Brenda O'Brien, who is looking forward to being a full-time mother after working in the position for almost two years.

According to Robert Morris, the director of hauling and transportation, "Troye's experience with the meter truck, fax manifest system and haulers makes him well-qualified for this position. We welcome him aboard and look forward to his contributions to the cooperative. Also, a special thanks to Brenda for her service to Maryland and Virginia. We wish her the best."

As one of 10 field representatives, Burruss is responsible for working with dairy farmers to ensure the production of quality milk, and serves as a liaison between Maryland and Virginia and the dairy farm families in his area. In addition, Burruss works with milk haulers and drivers, state dairy inspectors and coordinates district meetings.

Burruss came to Maryland and Virginia after working 25 years as a dairy inspector for the Virginia Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services. Some of his responsibilities included inspecting dairy farms and ice cream plants; monitoring construction and installation of equipment; evaluating milk haulers; and handling drug residue violations in milk.

A graduate of Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, Burruss received a bachelor's degree in Agricultural Education, and is a former employee of the Orange Madison Cooperative.

He was a first lieutenant helicopter pilot in the United States Army and was a flight instructor for Southern Airways. Burruss replaces Benny Miner, who retired after five years with Maryland and Virginia.

According to Alan Grove, the director of field services and quality assurance, "We are excited to have Bob on board with Maryland and Virginia. He is well respected among the dairy farmers in his area, and brings a wealth of knowledge and expertise to the cooperative."

Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative Association, headquartered in Reston, Va., is a milk marketing and processing cooperative which markets milk for 1,150 dairy farmers throughout Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and Delaware.

The cooperative includes Marva Maid, a milk processing division in Newport News, Va., a manufacturing division in Laurel, Md., and an equipment division in Frederick, Md.

should not be construed to mean that they will take precedence over more important matters.

Hayes said he is a strong believer that proper timing is important in achieving goals well. The department has the plan in order to continue to be working forward for the good of agriculture, while at the same time being ready to respond to unforseen concerns.

Extension Agents Form Mission Statement

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Extension agents from across the state gathered at University Park recently for the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Association of County Agricultural Agents (PACAA).

Before Laura Watts passed the steering wheel on to her successor, she said, "During this past year, we've looked at who we are and what we want to be. We developed a mission statement: To promote the professional improvement of members, recognize their outstanding accomplishments, and seek support for extension, its people, clientele, and programs.

In his acceptance speech as president, William Kleiner challenged county agents to be change movers and to maintain positive attitudes.

Assisting Kleiner in leading PACAA are Jim Cowden, president elect; Eugene Schurman, vice president; Susan Alexander, secretary; and Charles Gale, treasurer. Watts will remain on the PACAA board as a past president.

Awards were giving for distinguished service and for noteworthy contributions to Extension.

Rep. Sheila Miller was presented the Honorary County Agent Award.

Distinguished Service Awards went to Paul Craig, Dauphin County, and to Scott Guiser, Bucks County. Achievement Awards went to Mary Sue Shick of Washington County and to J. Craig Williams of Tioga County.

Communication awards were presented to the top three persons in each category. Two of the 40 entries were national winners: Dan McFarland, slide set, transparencies, or computer generated graphics; and Sanford Smith, forest and woodland enhancement and tree farm.

Rep. Sheilah Miller

National finalists included Phil Durst, personal column; Louise Middleton, team newsletter; and Mary Sue Shick, national finalist.

Members reviewed accomplishments and activities throughout the year.

The 114 members of PACAA seek to promote and support production agriculture, develop effective working relationships among members, work in the interest of members for improved salaries, retirement benefits, working conditions, and fringe benefits, encourage professional improvement and recognize distinguished service to the Extension.

Carol Schurman of Indiana County, left, congratulates Paul Craig of Dauphin County for receiving the Distinguished Service Award and Mary Sue Shick of Washington County, for receiving the Achievement Award.

Eager to guide the Pennsylvania Association of County Agricultural Agents into becoming the change movers of the future, from left, are William Kleiner, president; Jim Cowden, president elect; Eugene Schurman, vice president; Susan Alexander, secretary; Charles Gale, treasurer; and Laura Watts, past president.

Lancaster DHIA
Board Report
Joe Graybeal

The Board of Directors of Lancaster DHIA recently met at the lab in Manheim. A thorough review of operations were presented by General Manager, Jay Mylin and Lab Manager, Jere High.

Dave Garber, treasurer, reported a welcome increase in earnings over budget. The increased earnings resulted from a 16 percent increase in herds testing with Lancaster DHIA plus a large increase in M.U.N. samples tested through the lab.

During the past year, Field Technicians received a wage increase and were provided with new Premium laptops with no fee increase to dairymen. We ended the year with a respectable cash reserve which has been placed in an interest bearing account. Additionally, Lancaster DHIA was able to retire all debt incurred from its initial start-up costs.

The proposed budget for the new year was reviewed and approved by the Board. A positive end-of-year balance was again projected. However, the Board is keenly aware of the financial hardships dairymen are experiencing and again have not proposed any fee increase.

Lab Manager, Jere High, reported the lab continues to operate very well. The Bentley equipment operates efficiently with minimal maintenance. Head Lab Technician, Tracy Zimmerman, has assumed more responsibility, with thorough training, which allows Jere to assume a greater role with field service.

Lastly, the Board reviewed plans for the Lancaster DHIA's annual meeting to be held December 9, 1997. The noon meal starts promptly at 11:30 a.m. at the Good 'N Plenty Restaurant, Rt. 896 in Smoketown. The Board encourages members and friends to attend. Tickets are $9.50 and may be purchased from Technicians or by phoning the office (665-5960).

Lancaster DHIA serves Southeastern Pennsylvania. For information on our services call the office at (717) 665-5960.

Brown Swiss Production Performers Honored

BELOIT, Wis. — Winning came in streaks for many as Brown Swiss breeders accepted 1996 production performance awards at the National Brown Swiss Convention on July 11.

Several individual cow awards were presented for milk, fat and protein. To qualify, cows must have been enrolled on DHIR during 1996 and completed a 305-day lactation record during that calendar year. All awards were based on 305, 2x, ME basis.

For 1996, the J.P. Eves Award for the high milk record and the high protein record were won by Oberview Blend June owned by Tom Oberhaus of Oberview Farm in Waukesha, Wisconsin.

"June," a Trout Run Distinct Blend daughter classified "V86-Certified," produced an ME of 42,174 milk and 1,347 protein at 3-06 in 305 days. "June" went on to milk a total of 44,420 pounds of milk, 1,535 pounds of fat and 1,472 pounds of protein in 365 days.

The H.R. Searles Trophy was presented to Rolling Meadows Dots Lady owned by Mark Witmer of Salem, Ohio. "Lady" produced an ME of 2,116F at 4-09 in 305 days to win the trophy a second time after winning it in 1994. "Lady" went on to produce 45,890 pounds of milk and 2,416 pounds of fat, the new breed record for milk and fat. She is classified "V88-Certified" and is sired by K Top Acres Dotson ET.

PTPR Herd Awards

The Ira Inman Production and Type Performance Registry trophies were presented to the top herd in each of four herd-size divisions. All PTPR herds were eligible for these awards provided they had enrolled at least 10 animals in the PTPR program and at least 50 percent of the cows enrolled had completed production records during the year. All must have been classified during the last 18 months.

Winners were determined by assigning point values to each of the following six criteria: herd actual, 305-day lactation protein, fat and milk, herd classification average, percent records received during the year and number of years on a DHIR testing program.

This marks the sixth year in a row that Sunshine Genetics, owned by Chris Keim and Dan Hornickel of Whitewater, Wisconsin, have won the Ira Inman Award for Group 1. Their herd averaged 23,724 pounds of milk, 995 pounds of fat and 821 pounds of protein placing them first in Group I in 1996 for all three categories. Their herd classification average of 89.5 placed them first in the herd classification area as well.

The herd owned by Calvin and Andrea Nisly of Partridge, Kansas, was the only herd in Group II to top the 20,000 pounds milk, 800 pounds fat and 700 pounds protein levels. Their 36 cows averaged 20,527 pounds of milk, 824 pounds of fat and 716 pounds of protein.

The winner of Group III, Rolling Meadows Farm owned by Mark Witmer of Salem, Ohio, led all Group III herds in milk, fat and protein with a herd average of 21,330 pounds of milk, 974 pounds of fat and 748 pounds of protein on 55 cows. There were several excellent individual cow records in this herd, topped by the new breed milk and fat leader, Rolling Meadows Dots Lady.

The Blessing Family of Fort Wayne, Indiana, was the winner of Group IV, bringing home their eighth silver bowl for this award. In 1996, the Blessing herd was the only herd in Group IV to top the 20,000 pounds milk, 800 pounds fat and 700 pounds protein levels for herds with over 100 cows. Blessing Farm's herd average on 115 cows was 20,534 pounds of milk. 854 pounds of fat and 749 pounds of protein. Their classification average of 86.5 placed them fourth of all Group IV herds.

Taking first place honors in Group II was Walt VanderWaal of Orange City, Iowa, II's herd PTA protein average was 28.1. Group III's winning herd was the herd owned by Dean and Brenda Daubert of McElhattan, Pennsylvania, with a herd PTA protein average of 25.0 on 71 cows. Faber Swiss Colony of Tucson, Arizona, had the winning herd from Group IV, with a herd PTA protein average of 22.2 on 105 cows.

The Progressive Genetic Herd Award recognizes herds who have increased their PTA protein average the most from the previous year. The award winner in Group I was the herd of Sherry B. Krebs of Fredericksburg, Ohio. Her herd average PTA protein increased 14.8 during 1996, which was tops among all of the herds enrolled in PTPR. Group II's winner was Niday's Swiss Farm, owned by Dave Niday of Cement, Oklahoma. His herd increased 7.6 during 1996. The top herd in Group III was Merlin Geadelman of Clarence, Iowa, with an increase of 10.0 on 51 cows. For the first time in the history of the award, two herds tied for the top herd in Group IV. They were John R. and Kim D. Mower of Sedro Woolley, Washington, and Voegeli Farm Inc. of Monticello, Wisconsin, with an increase of 5.1

Other National Awards

The Brown Swiss Association recognizes herds that have been continuously enrolled in the association's official testing program for at least 25 years. Seven herds received a silver plaque for 25 years of enrollment: Marana Dairy Farm in Marana, Arizona; Galen Fick of Boyden, Iowa; David Kruger of Waukon, Iowa; Medlang Swiss owned by Charles Medlang of Kensett, Iowa; Evan Telleen of Gowrie, Iowa, Idyl Wild Farm, Inc. of West Linn, Oregon; and John and Becky Wegmueller of Monroe, Wisconsin.

Herds that were enrolled on official testing programs for more than 25 years received a bar to add to their plaque for every five-year interval after 25 years. The herd of Thomas and Mark Portner of Sleepy Eye, Minnesota, reached the 40-year level. Receiving a gold plaque for 50 years of enrollment was the herd of Helen of Alan Schleich of Caledonia, Minnesota. Only one herd surpassed 50 years, receiving a bar for 55 years of enrollment. This was the herd of William K. Watkins, Jr., of Belmont, Ohio.

A new award was established this year entitled, "Cow for All Seasons." At each national show, Nasco International sponsors a type and production award to the exhibitor of the cow with the highest 305, 2x milk record. The requirements list that the cow must be in the top five of her class of less than 20, or in the top 20 percent if more than 20. This new award, sponsored by Purebred Publishing, Inc., is presented to the Nasco winner with the highest production record.

The first winner of the Cow for All Seasons Award was Blessing Sensation Bria, owned by Milan F. Blessing and Family of Fort Wayne, Indiana. "Bria" produced 30,320 pounds of milk, 1,124 pounds of fat and 1,106 pounds of protein at 4-09 in 305 days.

The National Total Performance Trophy, sponsored by the Vernon Hull Memorial Fund, recognizes the cow that excels in both production and show performance. The award is given to the cow with the highest point total calculated on her high ECM record, combined with her lifetime total per day over 24 months of age and her show placing at the national show.

This was the sixth year in a row and the ninth overall that Wayne and Connie Sliker's Top Acres herd has captured the National Top Performance Award, Top Acres EJ Whizzbang was named the winner by placing second in the dry cow class at the Central National Show and having a 305-day ECM record of 34,008 pounds of milk and averaging 64.7 pounds per day over two years of age, giving her a total of 235.7 points. "Whizzbang" is "2E91" with four records over 20,000 pounds of milk and three records with over 1,000 pounds of fat.

The Brown Swiss Cattle Breeders' Association, headquartered in Beloit, Wisconsin, was founded to serve as the national organization for the registration and promotion of Brown Swiss cattle.

Pennsylvania Ag Leaders Take Local Business Acumen To Mid-West Bankers

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

MILWAUKEE, WI — The American Bankers Association held the 1997 National Agricultural Bankers Converence here this week. Darvin Boyd, vice president and director of agri-finance at CoreStates Bank, is chairman of the group and included a strong representation from Pennsylvania on the program that is usually stacked with mid-West people.

Sonja Hillgren

Mike Firestine, vice president at Lebanon Valley National Bank, helped kick-off the event last Sunday in a pre-conference seminar entitled "Is Your Bank Farmer Friendly?"

Boyd opened the general session by noting the conference theme: "Taking Charge of Change." "Agriculture and agri-finance is big business in America and in many of the states we represent, but it's landscape is changing dramatically," Boyd said. This conference is a wake-up call for ag bankers who want to serve the industry beyond the year 2000. Each of us must receive and utilize the management tools we need to make 'dollars and sense' of the forces shaping banking's future."

Listing some of the major developments in agriculture, Boyd listed the demise of government payments in 2002; 21st century technology; the maturing of the world economy; the birth of new industries like genetically manipulated organisms; escalating funding and interest rate risk, and accessibility of funds and the funding needs of speciality markets.

Also in the general session, Sonja Hillgran, editor of Farm Journal, moderated a panel entitled: Women in Ag: Farmers' Daught-

Former U.S. Ag Secretary To Speak At Chamber's Banquet

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — John R. Block, former United States Secretary of Agriculture, is the featured speaker at The Lancaster Chamber of Commerce and Industry's 21st Annual Agriculture-Industry Banquet Tuesday, November 25, 5:30 p.m., at the Holiday Inn Lancaster Host.

After serving as Secretary of the U.S. Department of Agriculture from 1981-1986, Block assumed his current position as president of Food Distributors International, an organization that represents the wholesale grocery and foodservice distribution industry in the U.S. Canada and overseas.

John Block

As a member of the Reagan Cabinet, Block played a key role in developing the 1985 Farm Bill, which helped to restore profitability to a farm sector devastated by recession in the early 1980s. Under his leadership, the Department of Agriculture's Food for Peace Program was a primary resource in feeding a starving African continent. He was one of four remaining officers from the original Reagan Cabineet at the time of his resignation.

Block currently hosts a syndicated weekly radio commentary broadcast by more than 200 stations in 30 states. In 1992, he was the recipient of the Horatio Alger Award, given to those Americans who overcome adversity to distinguish themselves in public life.

Block was raised on a family-owned farm in Galesburg, IL, which is now managed by his father and son, producing 3,000 acres of corn and soybeans and 12,000 hogs a year.

The banquet's Master of Ceremonies is Sonja Hillgren, editor of Farm Journal, and president of the National Press Club, the first member of the agriculture media to have this honor.

The Century Farm and George C. Delp Awards will be presented at the banquet, and there will be a live performance by Jon Chandler, nationally recognized agriculture musician and entertainer.

Tickets for the banquet are $40 per person or $350 for a table of 10. Deadline to register is November 14. For more information, please contact Jim Shirk at 397-3531 or e-mail at jshirk@lcci.com.

ers and Daughters-in-law. Behind every successful farm is a strong management team. Today, as a generation of farmers retires, a new generation takes over. Successful lenders must now evaluate the entire team and give equal focus and attention to the women who farm, as they now exercise greater influence over purchase and growth decisions.

Another high-powered panel was chaired by H. Lewis Moore, professor of ag economics at Penn State. Other panel members included Mike Horn, president and CEO, Pennfield Corp; Ron Kreider, president and partner, Kreider Farms; and Allen Rider, president New Holland North America. The panel's subject was: Planning for Change and 21st Century Technology. Rider showed a video of a windrow harvester that works the fields along. It's robotic movements are orchestrated by its ability to see the field before. The technology used in this working machine was developed in partnership between New Holland, NASA, and the National Robotics Consortium.

"These days life comes at us like bullets - fast and unforgiving," Boyd said. "But for people who rise to the occasion, these times are full of amazing possibilities and opportunities. For each of us, the pressing challenge is to get better, quicker. Business as usual is out the window in the agricultural lending industry. Business as unusual is now the case as this new era demands more rapid responses with immediate adaptability and fast result."

The national conference had 617 participants from 34 states, the District of Columbia, and Canada. The conference is scheduled to return the Minneapolis next year in November.

National Farmers Union Praises Support of N.E. Compact Ruling

AMES, Iowa — Northeastern dairy farmers and the agricultural companies that do business with them may see the promise of economic renewall in their region, according to a recent news release from the National Farmers Union.

U.S. District Judge Paul Freidman in mid-July ruled in favor of the Northeast Dairy Compact, joining with U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman in his support of the measure.

Dairy farmers in the Northeast are to receive $16.94 per hundred pounds of Class I milk, which is drinking milk.

The ruling and the Class I milk price essentially establishes a floor price, or minimum pay price on Class I fluid milk, for producers in the region.

"Since its inception, National Farmers has supported the Northeast Dairy Compact and USDA in its efforts to improve the dairy industry," said National Farmers Organization President Gene Paul, himself a former dairy producer. "This positive action will help rural economies offset a portion of the financial stress caused by farmer pay prices as low as those in 1979."

The Compact will improve dairy farmer prices for Class I by about $1.35 per hundred pounds. The states of Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Vermont make up the Compact region.

The Compact acts similarly to a floor price, which is a popular idea with producers across the continental United States. Agricultural groups and companies in the Southeast and other regions are gaining momentum in developing solutions, like a floor price, to the current financial crisis.

"The Compact price will give renewed hope to dairy producers as they work to support their families, local business, and give them reason to reinvest in their operations," Paul said.

The benchmark milk price, or Basic Formula Price (BFP), announced June 5 at $10.70 per hundred pounds, has fallen well below the USDA estimated cost of production of $15.97 per hundred pounds.

Additionally, 1995 dairy prices in the Northeast averaged 47 cents per hundred pounds lower than their dairy counterparts' prices in Wisconsin, in the heart of dairyland.

"The USDA, National Farmers and countless other dairy producer groups recognized the special challenges Northeastern dairy farm businesses face," Paul said. "Now they will receive payment on a more equitable basis under this ruling."

Jersey Organization Reports Growth

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — President Richard Clauss, Hilmar, Calif. addressed the AJCA annual meeting, held June 28 - July 1 in Indianapolis for the last time as president.

In his remarks he commented, "We are recognized as the most progressive and healthy breed organization in the United States today."

He then introduced the facts from which he made this statement, "Jerseys on DHI are up 3.5 percent, all other breeds are down. In domestic semen sales, Jersey is up 8.8 percent, Holstein 1.8 percent. All other breeds are down. Export semen sales show Jerseys up 500 percent over the closest competitor. DHI protein and milk production increases are greater than any other breed."

"In today's global economy we need to look worldwide," said Calvin Covington, executive secretary. "Compared to 1985, we have seen an increase of 750 percent in the export of Jersey semen. I predict some day more United States Jersey semen will be sold outside of the United States than within the United States."

Supporting that prediction is the recent export of Jerseys into China, and a profitable consignment sale of U.S. Jerseys held in Brazil. These are two of the largest potential markets in the world.

The international market is just one of several areas Covington highlighted as Jerseys and the Association continue to gain strength among all dairy breeds.

Using figures prepared from breed association annual reports. Covington illustrated how Jerseys are the only dairy breed showing an increase in registration numbers. All other breeds are declining.

The Jersey is also gaining market share, according To Covington. In the 1994-1996 period, 14.4 percent of all registrations were Jersey, compared to 11.37 percent in th 1985-1987 period.

Performance programs continue to enjoy a high level of participation. At the end of 1996, 72,363 animals were enrolled in one of the Association's programs, making it another record breaking year.

"The upward direction in registrations and record participation in performance programs should show that our breed association continues to move ahead and, more importantly, the membership sees that participating in our programs does help increase their income," said Covington.

Covington announced that the board of directors had approved the installation of a new Member Services Processing System at their recent meeting. "It will move us into the 21st Century with a state of the art processing system," noted Covington.

She comes from the famous "Belle" family which includes Duncan Belle and Golden Belle-ET who sold for $30,000 in the 1994 All American Sale.

"Belle" sold bred to Sooner Centurion-ET and was consigned by Cedarcrest Farms, Faunsdale, AL. "Belle" was purchased by Gallus Agropecuaria S/A, Sao Paulo, Brazil.

Gallus Agropecuaria also bid last to take home the third high-seller, Sunny Day Berretta Gretchen-ET, VG-87 percent for $9,391.

"Gretchen" has a first lactation m.e. of 26,820 pounds milk, 1,140 pounds fat and 915 pounds protein and sold bred to H&B Alf Paradox-ET. "Gretchen" is a Berretta out of Randleigh Duncan Gussie and has five brothers currently in A.I.

She was consigned by Herby D. Lutz, Chester, SC.

The 39 lots of cows and heifers were consigned by 28 U.S. Jersey breeders from nine states. Both sales have been a joint project between the Brazil Jersey Cattle Association Pinheiro Machado Ltd, Brazil; American Marketing Service, VA; and the American Jersey Cattle Association.

The sale was held in conjunction with Expomilk, Brazil's largest dairy and trade show.

Hundreds Attend Mt. Joy Farmers Open House

In the lower righthand corner, in a striped white shirt, Earl Dehmey, cooperative manager, discusses benefits of membership in the Mt. Joy Farmers Cooperative with attendees of the cooperative's open house at Country Table Restaurant in Mount Joy. At the same time, behind him are just a portion of the crowd that far exceeded the cooperative's anticipated attendance. The leaders of Mt. Joy Farmers Cooperative held the day-long open house event on Monday to discuss some of the various issues and programs involved in dairying and potential benefits of membership in the cooperative. The crowd was broken into two different groups so that half could attend one session on certain cooperative programs and benefits in the morning, while the other listened to another, and then switch in the afternoon.

Covington said, "Some of the many features of the new software will be the ability to complete more member work electronically, provide more customized reports, improve interface with on-farm software. USDA and Dairy Records Processing Centers and give us the ability to provide service to Jersey associations and breeders outside of the United States."

In the Treasurer's report, Vickie White reported that in 1996 AJCA showed a net income of $12,856 before the gain on marketable securities. Due to a required accounting change the gain on marketable securities in 1996 was $255,180. While further stating that the AJCA had net assets of $1,567,932 at the end of 1996.

Fall Conference Emphasizes Quality

DAVID BIGELOW
Training Coordinator

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Technicians from all over the service area of Pa. DHIA convened upon State College to attend each region's scheduled fall conference Oct. 13-17, at the Penn State Days Inn from 10:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Quality of the workmanship was stressed throughout the program, which included select speakers from the staff at Pa. DHIA.

A round table discussion conducted by Dean Amick, director of field operations, proved to be very beneficial in addressing several different issues. Processing update which included the breed DHIR rule changes were addressed by Jim Boyer, processing manager.

Technicians received computer cleaning and maintenance tips from Randy Mayes, Helpdesk worker, as well as received auditing tips from Gary Homan, member services supervisor.

Dave Slusser, general manager of Pa. DHIA, gave an updated report on the activities of Pa. DHIA which included a financial report.

Larry Markel, director of finance and human resources, explained the different health plans that are now available to the technicians. Dixie Burris, lab manager, reported on special issues involving the lab as well as answered questions.

Marketing and retention was the emphasis placed on the presentation by Tom Smith, Marketing manager region four.

A movie produced by David Bigelow, training coordinator, entitled "Welcome to California" was viewed and ideas were shared on different ways to service larger herds in the Pa. DHIA service area.

The fall conference is just one of the many ways Pa. DHIA continues to keep the technicians abreast of changes and issues that are taking place in the dairy industry.

Please feel free to contact Pa. DHIA at 1-800-344-8378 if we can assist with your dairy management record system.

Minnesota Judge's Order

pay prices in certain areas of the country. Senator Patrick Leahy, Dem.-Vt., called the decision a "runaway ruling" that could jeopardize the incomes of dairy farmers by effectively creating a single milk price.

Historically, the milk pricing policy ensured an adequate supply of fresh, wholesome milk in areas of the country where milk production could not keep up with consumer demand. The differentials pay producers sufficient money to cover transportation costs when shipping their milk into deficit areas.

"Currently, law directs the Secretary of Agriculture to determine supply and demand conditions in different areas of the country and consider feed and other production costs when determining the local market price. The federal milk order system, before the judge's ruling, was a positive partnership between consumers and producers, because dairy areas with an over-supply could bolster their prices by being paid to move milk into areas where consumers needed it the most," Paul said.

Already USDA officials have gone on record opposing Judge Doty's ruling, and this week political and farm leaders were commending and supporting U.S. Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman for saying the national ag department will appeal the decision.

Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's president, Guy Donaldson applauded Glickman for responding quickly to a situation which has taken the dairy industry by surpise. "Farm Bureau is very concerned about the immediate effect of this decision on Pennsylvania dairymen, as well as for producers across the country," Donaldson said. "Without putting a hold a hold on the judge's decision, we will be facing immediate negative consequences for an already struggling dairy industry in Pennsyvania."

At the direction of Congress, the Agriculture Department was already working on a new program and this spring offered six possible plans to the industry. Joel Rotz, PFB's dairy specialist, said USDA is now in the midst of reforming and restructuring the federal order system, including pricing.

"We have been very involved in the process, submitting comments and participating in an American Farm Bureau order reform working group," Rotz said. "USDA is about to issue its first proposals next month. Those proposals may address some of the complaints raised by the Minnesota milk producers group. In any case, we should not let the Minnesota judge's decision throw us off course toward a responsible and carefully thought out federal order reform."

Rotz said it's hard to determine exactly where milk prices would be for Pennsylvania dairymen without the Class 1 differentials in place. The most likely effect will be price volatility and possibly a dwindling base of milk producers within Pennsylvania's borders.

Other officials believe the loss of dairy producers would be nationwide. Carl Baumann, Mid-America Dairymen,Inc. president, said we are losing an average of 6.000 dairy farms a year. In the past five years, nearly 25 percent of the nation's dairy farmers went out of business either because they couldn't make ends meet, or they retired and the next generation decided not to go into an industry with such a bleak future.

"This ruling will only hasten the demise of dairying in the United States," Baumann said.

State Lifts Avian Quarantine

Hayes, who spoke at a press conference at the agriculture building in Harrisburg, said, "I want to take an action which I believe is appropriate and prudent."

The notice, effective immediately, allows the Lancaster County poultry industry to resume normal activity in the 75-square-mile zone. No permits are required for the movement of poultry and poultry products through the area.

The quarantine has effected about 1.84 million layers, of which a total number of approximately 1.024 million birds have been destroyed. Sixteen premises have been affected, including two in Lebanon and 14 in Lancaster.

However, noted Hayes, three premises containing 660,000 birds remain under special quarantine. Nothing can move from the premise without permit. Two are expected to come off the quarantine on approximately Dec. 1. The third is expected to come off approximately Dec. 15.

"Surveillance will continue," said Hayes. "The lift of the general quarantine does not mean, nor should it be interpreted, that biosecurity measures are no longer necessary."

In fact, Hayes urged producers to continue strict biosecurity on their farms.

"The poultry industry has shown tremendous courage and they have shown progressive leadership with regard to biosecurity measures.

"Biosecurity," Hayes said, "should continue. The general quarantine is lifted. But that does not mean that we should not continue to be vigilant, that does not mean that we shouldn't continue to use biosecurity measures."

However, the ban on poultry exhibits at the Farm Show remains in effect.

There have been no new cases of A.I. since July this year.

Hayes indicated that on June 18 this year, Gov. Tom Ridge signed legislation appropriating $5 million for the war on A.I. The amount of money paid out as of the end of October is $796,902.60. Of that, $475,000 went to indemnity payments for producers affected. Of the total, $59,000 went to eggs, $121,000 went to depopulation, $12,000 to evacuation, $92,000 to cleaning and disinfecting, $16,000 to flats destroyed, and $60,000 to new equipment.

Last summer, the state department of agriculture petitioned USDA to provide A.I. vaccine. Four million doses were procured at a cost of $120,000. The state was informed that the manufacturer assures a shelf life for the vaccine of at least two years.

The poultry industry is valued at $646.6 million. In 1983, Hayes recalled that avian influenza "wreaked havoc" on the industry, which today is ranked fourth in the country for all chicken inventory and in egg production.

"Its return in 1997 of course carried a great consternation for all of us — those of us in public life and certainly those who are in the private life, specifically in the poultry industry," he said.

During this "very stressful time" in the poultry industry, Hayes noted, there is still the threat from A.I.

"While we are winning the battle," Hayes said, "I am not prepared to declare victory. We must continue to protect our poultry industry in whatever way necessary."

PDA Announces New Lab Chief

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A new chief for the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Animal Health and Diagnostic Services Division of Veterinary Laboratories began work on Monday this week.

Dr. H. Graham Purchase will provide new administrative responsibilities for the lab for all animal species, it was announced at a press conference in Harrisburg Monday.

Purchase, who received his veterinary degree at Onderstepoort, the veterinary school of the University of Pretoria in Pretoria, South Africa, worked in Michigan for the USDA. He received a doctorate in microbiology from Michigan State University in 1970.

Purchase was one of the primary discoverers of the first Marek's Disease vaccine, the most effective vaccine against any kind of cancer in any animal. The vaccine is made and sold by a variety of companies in the U.S. and worldwide.

Purchase's primary goal is to validate accreditation of the lab, to make sure the accreditation continues. Purchase oversees about 40 people on staff.

According to Purchase, there are almost nine billion chickens in the U.S., and almost every one gets the Marek's Disease vaccine. Vaccines are an essential ingredient in providing healthy birds for a rapidly expanding industry.

Now, many vaccines are injected right into the embryo in the egg — before it is hatched. It is those kinds of technologies which make the industry so exciting, Purchase noted.

Lancaster 4-H Dairy Members, Leaders Recognized

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Four Lancaster County 4-H members were recognized as distinguished 4-H dairy graduates Saturday night, November 8 at the annual 4-H dairy awards night. They were: Gerald Boyd, Ephrata; Jason Henisee, Columbia; Heather Oberholtzer, Elizabethtown; and Elizabeth Smith, Denver.

Earlier in the year, Gerald was chosen as Lancaster County's 1997 superior 4-H member. He has completed 11 years of 4-H club work with projects in dairy, swine, sheep and goats. He has been a member of dairy and livestock judging teams and competed at state and national levels. In 1996 he was chosen to attend the National 4-H Congress and to participate in a 4-H Polish Exchange Trip. Throughout his 4-H career, Gerald has numerous accomplishments entering his swine and Brown Swiss cattle projects in local, state and national competition. He is currently attending Millersville State University.

Jason Henisee also has 11 years of 4-H experience, mostly with Guernsey dairy cattle. His Guernseys have placed well in various state and national shows. He has served as president and secretary of his local 4-H club and has represented Lancaster County in dairy bowl and dairy judging competitions. Jason is applying his interest and skills at a local dairy farm.

Heather Oberholtzer is an 8-year member who has carried projects in dairy and horses. In addition to serving as president of her two 4-H clubs, she also represented Lancaster County in state competitions in dairy judging, dairy bowl, and in demonstration and public speaking presentations. Heather applied her communication skills effectively in her role as a Lancaster County Dairy Princess. She is the recipient of a Lancaster County Farm and Home Foundation scholarship, and is currently studying dairy and animal science at Penn State University.

Elizabeth Smith is another 4-H member with 11 years of 4-H experience. Her 4-H career began in New Jersey and continued when her family moved to Lancaster in 1998. During this period of time she has shown predominantly Brown Swiss dairy cattle. With her cattle, Elizabeth has won numerous championship and owner-breeder awards in regional and state competition. She also has been a member of various county 4-H dairy judging and dairy bowl teams. She currently reigns as Lancaster County Dairy Princess, and is enrolled as a student at the Penn State Berks Campus.

Nutrition Resource On Web

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Department of Dairy and Animal Science in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences has a new resource of information for dairy producers, nutritionists, veterinarians, consultants and other professionals who have access to the World Wide Web.

The Dairy Cattle Nutrition web site can be reached by pointing an Internet browser (such as Netscape or Internet Explorer) at http://www-das.cas.psu.edu/dcn.

"We have updated information and recommendations for the best possible practices for feeding and managing dairy animals," said Jud Heinrichs, Penn State professor of dairy and animal science.

"The site offers a great deal of current and detailed information about topics ranging from nutrient requirements to feeding recommendations. We also have printable growth charts, dry cow publications and a section devoted to the Penn State Forage and TMR Particle Size Separator."

For the dairy producer, nutritionist, veterinarian, consultant and agricultural professional, the Dairy Cattle Nutrition site has more than 20 on-line Penn State dairy-related publications, three slide shows and printable tables and charts to help with nutrition and feeding management of calves, heifers and cows.

Winners were also selected in various divisions of 4-H record book competition. In the senior division the best book award went to Gerald Boyd, Ephrata. Second place went to Janine Leaman of Lancaster. Brian Mull, Quarryville, wrote the best 4-H story.

Joshua Akers, Quarryville, had the best record book in the intermediate division, and Lori Hess of Pequea took 2nd place. The best story in this division was written by Crystal Brubaker of Manheim.

In the junior division, the best book award was won by Cheryl Hershey of Ronks. Matthew Groff of Quarryville won 2nd place, and Stephanie Harnish, Kinzers, had the best story.

Photographic awards were presented to members who took the best picture in each of two categories by breeds. In the working category, the emphasis was on members working with their animal. Breed winners were: Brown Swiss - Elizabeth Smith, Denver; Guernsey - Andrew Smith, Denver; Holstein - Aaron Trimble, Drumore. The human interest category focused on humorous and interesting happenings with their project animals. Breed winners in this category were: Brown Swiss - Lori Hess, Pequea; Guernsey - Brian Smith, Denver; Holstein - Cheryl Hershey, Ronks; Jersey - Janine Leaman, Lancaster.

The success of 4-H programs rests heavily upon volunteer leaders who generously share their time, talents and resources with youth, and upon the support of parents who are interested in the development of their children. In Lancaster County, 12 4-H dairy club leaders and coaches have collectively volunteered over 192 years of service to 4-H youth development programs! Three of them were recognized for 5-year increments of service. They were: Dale Hershey, Ronks - 15 years; Dale Smith, Denver - 25 years; Tom Smith, Denver, who reached his 30-year mark last year.

Volunter leaders received recognition for their service. From left, Dale Hershey, 15 years; Dale Smith, 25 years; and Tom Smith, 30 years.

Idaho Jersey Sets New Production Record

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — For the second time in less than two months, a new United States Jersey production record has been set.

Barbs MBSB Dayetta-ET, EX-90%, made in a 365-day lactation started at 3 years 6 months of age, 35,910 pounds milk, 4.0% 1,439 pounds fat, and 4.0% 1,451 pounds protein DHIR V.

"Dayetta" is a daughter of Mason Boomer Sooner Berretta.

The previous record of 1,365 pounds of protein was set by OSB E Settler Shadow Maggie - the dam of "Berretta." "Maggie" held the protein record since 1992.

Both "Dayetta" and "Maggie" are owned by William and Barbara Mason, Buhl, ID.

Just September, a new milk production record of 365 days 3x 38, 030 lbs. Milk 4.6% 1,732 lbs. Fat 3.5% 1,333 lbs. Protein DHIR V was set by Queen-Acres Boomer Celeste owned by James L. and Sharon L. Osborn, Keymar, Md.

The protein dynasty doesn't end with "Dayetta" and her granddam. Barbs Duncan Day, "Dayetta's dam, won the President's Trophy - based on mature equivalent (m.e.) pounds protein in 1991. In addition to "Dayetta," Mason said they are milking about 30 other family members.

The Masons have been breeding for protein, "...since Dr. Ernstrom came up with the cheese yield formula," according to Bill Mason, "We call for protein."

The Masons sell in the Great Basin Federal Order which was the first federal order in the nation to be priced under a multiple component pricing plan.

"Dayetta's" first son was the high seller at the 1995 All American Sale. Jerseyland Sires of Hilmar, CA bid $51,500 for Barbs Trader Doc. Another son, Barbs Kent Dateline, is headed to Select Sires.

"Dayetta" will be flushed to WF/L&M Duncan Barber-ET in three weeks, another flush is scheduled to Altheas Select-ET some time after that. Sons will be available from these matings according to Mason.

The Mason's 1996 herd average on 168 cows was 16,910 lbs. milk, 737 lbs. fat and 649 lbs. protein. That ranks them 10th in the U.S. for protein for herds of 150-299 records.

Lancaster Holstein Assn. Meeting This Week

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Officials of the Lancaster County Holstein Association have announced plans to hold their annual meeting this week at the Farm and Home Center. The date is Tuesday evening, November 18, at 7 p.m.

This year the association will provide hot roast beef sandwiches and baked potatoes. Those who attend are asked to bring a vegetable or a dessert to the potluck supper. Gary Welk will cater the sandwiches and potatoes.

The program this year is to be provided by members of the association. This sounds interesting. The last four dairy ambassadors will take the stage. They are Katie Hess, Lara Welk, Heather Brubaker, and Lisa Ranck. Lisa won the Lancaster County 4-H tallent contest, playing the harp.

Also on the program are Deb Brubaker and a berber shop quartette that includes Dale Hershey, Mike Eby, Kelden Hath, and Dave Stoltzfus. The election of directors will also be part of the evening program.

If you want to attend, you should call for reservations now over the weekend up to Monday noon. Your calls should be made to Lowell Brubaker at 653-2612 or Rick Hess at 291-9343.

Rep. Coy Introduces

consider his proposal.

"For as long as I've been in the Legislature, the agricultural and environmental communities have been arguing for a returnable container deposit law or bottle bill which would discourage people from littering by placing a value on bottles and cans. At the same time, business, labor and retail and consumer groups have fought against a bottle bill citing costs, convenience, jobs and disruption of the recycling market," he said.

Coy's proposal is intended to accomplish three goals: penalize polluters, promote cleanup and provide for some reparation to farmers who incur financial losses as a result of adulterated crops, damage to machinery and injured or killed livestock.

Specifically, it would raise the fine for littering from $300 to $600 in an Agriculture Security Area, an area designated as important to the local economy and landscape. There is currently one million acres of farmland designated this way.

The fine for littering within the confines of a preserved farm under the Pennsylvania Farmland Preservation Program would be raised to $900. More than 100,000 acres of farmland have been preserved since 1988.

To promote cleanup, a bill would expand the authority to include grants to organizations and municipalities for litter cleanup along rural roads and farm fields. Currently, 30 percent of the Recycling Fund may be used for public information, public education and technical assistance programs.

To mitigate farmers' financial losses, a bill would earmark a portion of the Recycling Fund to provide a partial financial reparation for those farmers who incur losses due to discarded cans and bottles. Requirements of the program follow:

— a maximum of $5 million will be used for this fund.

— only bona fide losses, as attested by a veterinarian, cooperative extension agent or Department of Agriculture food or animal inspector will be eligible.

— the fund will be capped at $2,000 or ⅓ of the actual losses incurred, whichever is less.

— an individual farmer will be eligible for a total of $2,000 a year.

— equipment will include ties.

— the fund will be administered by the Department of Environmental Protection and the Department of Agriculture.

"If we can reduce the amount of bottles and cans by striking out at polluters and expanding our communities' cleanup programs, we'll have made significant headway. To back that up, we can help farmers by assisting with some of the damages caused by the litter that we can't stop. It's a compromise that should also be effective," Coy said.

Tri-Star Testing Decisions Need To Be Made

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — "Will your cows appear on the locator list?" Not if the herd isn't enrolled in either the Deluxe or Premier options of the Holstein Association USA's new TriStar production program, according to Tom Nunes, of Santa Rosa, Calif.

Nunes is on the Holstein Association board of directors and is chairman of the Field Operations Committee.

TriStar is designed to provide services to a wider group of dairy producers with three options: Premier, Deluxe, and Custom. Starting with the February 1998 genetic evaluation, cows calving for the first time on or after Jan. 1, 1997 must be in a Deluxe or Premier herd.

To be eligible a herd must be enrolled and processed as Deluxe or Premier by the time of the USDA-AIPL cutoff (Jan. 2, 1998) for the receipt of data. This date has not been determined by USDA-AIPL at this time. The last DHIA herd code on the cow's production genetic evaluation will be used to determine her herd status.

Nunes said the new DHI system allows producers to design testing programs to meet their needs.

That decision will dictate whether or not USDA will use the records for genetic evaluations, and for which Holstein Association programs a herd's records are eligible.

"It's time to ask yourself, what credibility will my records have with potential buyers?" he said. "If you want a testing program that allows your records to be utilized for genetic purposes, (like an A.I. young sire program) or any Holstein programs, you must adopt a testing program that meets their minimum requirements.

"For example, milk weights must be recorded every 75 days on a herd basis or some cows will not receive genetic evaluations.

In the past "Type of Test" and "Official" or "Unofficial" were used to determine the acceptance of records by the industry.

The distinction between Official and Unofficial records is no longer made by the DHI system. Therefore, the Holstein Association, as an end user, has developed standards for including production records in various breed programs, starting with "OPEN DISCLOSURE" and a "DATA COLLECTION RATING" (DCR).

DCR reflects the amount of information contained in an individual production record. Holstein will use this to label records and to determine eligibility for TriStar options.

With these changes, the Holstein Association has created the TriStar production records program.

One "star" indicates Custom records; Deluxe records are labeled with two stars and have higher minimum requirements and record monitoring; and three stars indicate Premier records with more monitoring and verification than previously available, Nunes said.

"Being a policeman did not work well in the past and certainly will not work in the future," Nunes said. "Now it is up to you how credible or useful your records will be. Holstein has designed three service options to assist you in meeting your management, breeding and cattle merchandising goals."

These options are:

CUSTOM, (*) records must meet minimum data collection standards and are no subject to verification. Because these records are not monitored or subject to verification these cows will not be eligible for the Locator List and other cow rankings such as the Top 10,000 TPI cow population. Only  and  records are eligible for these programs. To be on the Custom program in Holstein's TriStar program only requires an annual $20 herd fee. These records will be labeled with * and a DCR for milk and components, making them eligible to appear on Official Holstein Pedigrees℠.

DELUXE () records meet higher standards and are subject to verification. In most cases record verification will consist of computer analysis and cow profiles. Cows in this program will have their records monitored on a monthly basis. Outliers will be identified much earlier, with more timely verification than was ever done in the past. This option has an annual $20 herd fee plus 15 cents/cow/mo. 305, 365 day and completed records are updated monthly from the DRPC. These records are eligible for cow rankings and herd recognition programs.

PREMIER () records have the highest data collection standards and degree of record analysis. Only  records can be state and national production leaders.

Dairy Industry May Benefit From Yogurt Promotion

GEORGE F.W. HAENLEIN
Extension Dairy Specialist
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — "Got Milk?" has been an effective milk advertisement, as has the print ad campaign in non-farm magazines showing celebrities wearing milk mustaches.

Yet the fact remains that many of the youngsters who should be drinking are not — no matter how persuasive the messages may be that milk fills a nutritional need for calcium.

So, why not go the next step to an excellent alternative for milk.

How about "Got Yogurt?" After all, yogurt has as much calcium as its equivalent volume of milk — or more, if it's made with additional milk powder as a stiffening agent.

The fruits or flavors in the non-plain yogurt are just what youngsters like and may be missing in milk. And yogurt has an added advantage — less lactose and the development of lactase enzyme in yogurt for people who are lactose-intolerant.

Yogurt has as much nutritional value, if not more, as milk. Only the promotion is missing, and the nutritional label on yogurt in the United States doesn't help. U.S. yogurt labels do not list content of calcium; only the percentage of calcium requirement is stated.

In Europe — Romania, for example — the nutrition label lists how much calcium is contained in 4 ounces or 100 grams of yogurt, so you can program your daily calcium intake to better your requirements and prevent old-age osteoporosis.

Yogurt offers health benefits in addition to its nutritional ones, a fact not readily understood.

Yogurt is milk fermented because of the presence (or addition) of bacteria, which grow and multiply on the medium of lactose and produce lactic acid. This fermentation process provides lactose, the enzyme that is so beneficial to lactose-intolerant people.

The lactic acid bacteria also ingest other bacteria and attach themselves to the intestinal wall, which increases the immune capacity of the human host.

The ingestion of other bacteria restores the ecological balance of bacteria in the intestines, especially when people have been on antibiotic treatment and have developed upset stomachs and diarrhea as a result.

The ingestion of other bacteria also suppresses foodborne pathogenic bacteria, reduces the liberation of carcinogenic products during digestion and detoxifies harmful products.

All this has been established through numerous research studies.

Another (though less well-known) fact was established in the same studies. Many of the lactic acid bacteria have different names, depending on specific species or strains and characteristics.

A better-known species, Lactobacillus acidophilus, has been proven to be especially powerful in restoring the balance of bacteria in the intestines. Consumers can find the name on some yogurt package labels.

This bacteria is especially valuable when added to yogurt cultures, because it produces specific antimicrobial substances bearing different names, often generally referred to as "Bacteriocins."

Testing Decisions

Besides monthly monitoring, record of Premier herds will be reviewed at a minimum of once per year. For example a cow making a state or national leader record would have increased documentation, or an owner may even request additional verification to add credibility to the record. In addition to the programs offered with the Deluxe option, Premier herds receive all Genetic Herd Reports automatically. The Premier options has an annual herd fee of $30 plus 25 cents/cow/mo.

Nunes noted that some producers may ask why they would want their records reviewed.

"Because the DHI system does not distinguish between 'official' and 'unofficial' records, the herd owner must design a testing program to meet their use," he said. "If you want your records to be accepted by others, an independent review by the Holstein Association can assist you in documenting the accuracy of those records."

Nunes was enthusiastic about the TriStar program. "Instead of directing our efforts to prevent rule violations, we can put most of our resources toward the herds that want increased documentation and verification of the level of accuracy they are achieving," he said. "That's very positive."

For more information about the Holstein Association's TriStar production records program, contact the Member Service Unit at 800-952-5200.

Team Efforts Raise Status, Spirits Of Hershey Students

Tarea and Florence think it's more fun to milk goat together than alone.

Greg Laughlin stands in front of a chart that students fill out to record their feelings whenever they spend time at the animal center.

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — It's difficult to say who derives more from a relationship between kids and animals, but it's evident that in most cases both child and animal thrive from the companionship.

Chocolate magnate Milton S. Hershey knew this when he provided cost-free education and home to underprivileged children in 1909. He planned for children to grow up on a farm and help with the chores.

At one time students at the school were all involved in animal care. When the dairy barns were dispersed, animal care seemed to become a distant memory. Now the school is going back to animal chore plans with a slightly differently twist.

Animal chores are not mandatory for all students. They are mandatory only for students who sign up to become part of the 4-H and FFA animal clubs. Depending on individual schedules, students are assigned monthly, weekly, or daily chores.

Today, Hershey's $60 million personal fortune is one of the largest educational endowments that now provides home and schooling for 1,100 students from kindergarten through 12th grade.

Although only one of the homes the children live in is located on a working dairy farm, the school is working toward students becoming more involved with animals and animal-related chores. Care for goats, service dogs, sheep, steers, horses, rabbits, and guinea pigs are considered a vital part of the program.

Four months ago, Todd Biddle, a Penn State graduate of ag education, came to the school with the goal to increase student enrollment in 4-H and FFA animal projects.

Biddle, who is the instructional adviser of the animal center and responsible for classroom teaching and curriculum for all grades, is enthusiastic about the benefits of student participation in animal projects.

"When students have an interest in a project, they tend to be more successful," Biddle said. "A live animal piques student interest. Students learn most through hands-on experience."

Clubs include multigrade levels. Older and younger students are generally paired together.

Goats

The most popular club seems to be the Goat Club. No doubt it's the result of Todd Biddle's own enthusiasm for goats. He grew up caring and showing goats, and served as a former ambassador for the industry.

"Goats are such accepting and loving animals," Biddle said of his reasons for believing that goat projects are one of the better ones for students.

"Their size and personalities make it possible for students to have good success with sheep and goats. Although Biddle sees similar traits among goats and sheep, he said there is one major difference.

"Walk up to a goat and it runs toward you. Walk up to a sheep and it runs away."

Biddle brought some of his Saanen show goats to the school. Other breeds at the school include Alpine, Toggenburg, and Nubian.

Students milk eight of the goats daily. It takes 5-10 minutes to milk goats. Some students team together and each milk one teat at a time.

The milk is pasteurized by the students before feeding the milk to the baby goats and pigs.

Miller's wife bottle-feeds the goats at night when the students are in bed.

"Each little thing a student accomplishes is a success," Biddle said.

Success in the show ring isn't dependent upon ribbons and trophies, but upon a student following through with the techniques they've been taught.

Prosocial self esteem is the result of tremendous teamwork. Kids who share the same interests work with each other and monitor progress.

The goats are housed in the barn at the group home where Dan Miller is a houseparent. Miller teaches sanitation rules while Biddle concentrates on teaching breeding and showing aspects.

Not all the students involved in the goat club live where the goats are housed. Some students are involved in sports and other programing. This means some students care for the animals more than others.

Students usually consider it a benefit to live on grounds with the animals and are pleased to spend more times doing chores.

Biddle is a certified judge who judges 10-20 shows annually. He also judges draft horses, dairy cows, and sheep.

Animal Center

Psychologists assign some students animal care to instill love and bonding, responsibility and care. They learn that animals, like humans, will suffer if not treated properly.

Greg Laughlin, assistant

(Turn to Page B4)

Students learn to herd sheep, which naturally seem to want to go the opposite direction of where they should be headed.

Ten-year-old Stephen was terrified of dogs when his group home first became a foster family for raising a service dog, which are trained to assist parents with disabilities.

On Being a Farm Wife (and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

Why am I using this?

Why am I using this — like this?

Ya' know how you spend a long time doing something, and then one day, out of the blue, the proverbial cartoon "light bulb" comes on above your head?

My bulb had just lit up.

It was a routine job, something I do a couple times a year. Years ago, while installing underground drain pipes around the farm as part of our soil conservation management, we added a drainage pipe where the runoff gathers from around the east side of the barns. It's an upright, slotted plastic pipe, located at an edge of the yard and contained within a yard-square catch basin. The Farmer built the catch basin with low fieldstone walls, so that it is attractive, utilitarian, and can't be flattened by a roving cow or heifer.

As the waters run off after rains — which it is actually doing once again periodically — the flow takes with it an accumulation of soil, manure, and sawdust from the paved area around the buildings. Those solids settle in the basin, while the water drains off through the slots, travels underground via a series of pipes, and eventually returns to a stream way down on the other side of the meadow.

An unplanted benefit of the settling basin is that it has proved to be an ideal source of rich, organic potting soil. Add a little time, maybe some sand and — viola! — you have the equivalent of a soil that many plants crave like I crave chocolate. Awesome earthworms which grow in the organic matter are an added bonus.

Several times a year, especially fall and spring when plants and seedlings are being potted, I dig bucketfuls of the rich stuff from the catch basin and stash it for handy use. My supply had depleted and little had settled over the summer, with no rainfall to provide the runoff. Recent moisture had restored the level of accumulated soil, which needed to be dug out before snow and ice bury it.

Anyway, I had just filled one of my long-used storage containers with the soil when the "bulb" flashed on in my head.

What was I doing, for crying out loud? This container is a large, old, blue-graniteware canning kettle, with a metal and wood carrying handle and handles on three sides. And I had it piled full of the damp, strawy, sawdusty, manure-rich mix.

"You dummy!" one half my brain screamed at the other half. "That is an antique!"

Talk about a guilt trip.

The contents promptly went into a plastic, five-gallon bucket, so I could examine the graniteware piece. Its finish had several nicks, which had caused a couple of original tiny leaks and retired the canner from its original use. Two holes at one bottom edge had no doubt been enhanced by the container's more recent use. How foolishly careless of me.

A conversation with a good friend, related just a few days before, popped into my head. While browsing in an antique shop recently, she had found a well-used, cabbage-slaw cutter. A utensil, she realized, just like the one her mother was still using in her kitchen. She cut a deal with her mother to buy and trade her a new slaw cutter for the old one, which my friend wants for her country house decor — what you might call a win-win arrangement.

I don't actually recall where the granite canner came from — but I think it came from my mom. It no longer holds potting soil, though I may use it to display plants in the living room.

The moral: don't laugh at the stuff your mom and grandma use because some day you might have second thoughts about it.

And, if you don't believe that, just go price a couple of those original blue canning jars.

Team Efforts Raise Spirits Of Students

instruction adviser at the animal center, said that before students receive an animal, they must learn the proper procedures to care for them, such as changing food, water, and bedding. Students are taught to enter the building calmly and to greet the instructor and classmates.

Charts are filled out to describe animal behavior. The students are required to answer, in writing, how they felt when coming and leaving the class.

At first, Laughlin was perplexed to see that some students felt sad after spending an hour with their pets. He expected their attitudes would become more positive after a session with a pet.

Laughlin soon discovered that students felt sad because they needed to be separated from the animal at the end of the class period.

Service Dogs

Some of the students raise service and seeing eye dogs. Seeing eye dogs are raised to work with a blind person, but service dogs fill various needs. They are raised for handicapped persons and need to learn to turn on lights and perform tasks to help the person with disabilities become more independent.

Generally, students remain in the same home setting. But students can apply for other homes. For example, if a student would like to live at one of the homes where a service dog is being raised, he can apply for a transfer.

Jerry and Donna Hamel are houseparents for 10 boys between the ages of 11 to 17. They consider their home a foster family for raising a puppy for a service dog project.

While kids and dogs are often considered natural, that isn't necessarily true, according to the Hamels.

Ten-year-old Stephen admitted that he was deathly afraid of the black Labrador Retriever when it was first placed in the group home. Terry was from New York and seldom came into contact with animals. It took a while for Stephen to learn to trust the dog, but he now loves to romp with the dog. His experience with the dog has steered him into pursuing a career with animals. In fact, he has a part-time job with ZooAmerica.

The Hamels say that service dogs can help persons with spinal cord injuries, polio, cerebral palsy, muscular dystrophy, arthritis, stroke, and similar disabilities.

While the dog becomes part of the family in the Hamel household, the boys learn to interact with the dog and with other people. The puppy, of course, is delighted with all the attention from 10 boys and the houseparents.

There are benefits for the students as well. They see the value of house rules and the need for the dog to learn manners.

"The kids aren't use to verbally praising others, not even an animal," Donna Hamel said. "One of the things we must do is praise the dog whenever it obeys. At first, that's hard for the boys to do, but it's rewarding to see the progress as the boys learn patience in working and in praising the dog."

The goat club has had a successful season in showing goats. Todd Biddle, standing at left, believes goats are one of the most rewarding animal projects students can have.

The boys aren't allowed to sneak a puppy into bed with them. The puppy must sleep in a cage.

The boys and the houseparents participate weekly in an obedience training school. Each puppy is given 10 minutes of intense training daily.

Separation between the students and puppies are eased because the dogs are returned to the service program for further training in June when the students leave for vacation. When the students return from vacation, another dog is placed in the home.

Sheep

Last year only two students raised sheep, but this year 16 students selected sheep as a project. Students had a choice to choose either a breeding or a market lamb. They went to an auction and bid on the sheep.

As we will be entertaining company this coming Sunday, I just sat down to make up the menu. Then I realized that almost every time we entertain I have almost the same menu. Maybe I think that if our guests enjoy the food that I cook then why change it.

Usually, I start with a fruit cup and have ham as the meat dish. This is followed by several of our frozen vegetables. My baked corn has always brought compliments. Pickles with carrot and celery sticks provide the relish and I top off the meal with an apple cake. The cake recipe is rather complicated but the results are worth the effort.

This Sunday night group is called "Supper for Eight." We have been a member since it started more than 25 years ago. It is a way for church members to get to know each other better as new members are invited.

Talking about food, I recently went with my daughter-in-law to a wholesale store. My lasting impression of it was its size. You could barely see from one end to the other. And, the amount of products you would have to buy is not to my liking. A 50-pound bag of rice or a 100-pound bag of flour is way too much for two people. When our children were all at home, I usually went to our local mill and bought a 25-pound bag of flour. In those days we would also use five dozen eggs a week. As we had our own milk, each day I cooked chocolate or vanilla pudding.

Now it seems that we always have leftovers. But that too is a challenge to combine them into a tasty dish. Things certainly change over the years. In fact they change so slowly that we hardly notice. We work a little slower but still accomplish everything that is necessary.

Toys With Antibacterial Protection

In spring 1997 Playskool® (Hasbro, Inc.) released a new line of juvenile products and toys featuring Microban® antibacterial protection. Microban® is embedded in the plastic or synthetic fibers of the toy or product, is nontoxic, and does not wash off. Microban® protects the toy by inhibiting the growth of bacteria in plastic. A recent settlement agreement between Hasbro and the US Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) required Hasbro to clarify that the toys have not been approved by EPA for use to control or inhibit E. coli, Staph, Salmonella, or Strep (bacteria that cause public health problems).

Caregivers who use toys protected with Microban® need to remember that this special protection does not mean you can stop cleaning disinfecting toys. When children mouth or touch toys, germs are transmitted. You must still follow the recommendations of the American Academy of Pediatrics and American Public Health Association. The National Health and Safety Standards state that contaminated toys must be cleaned with water and detergent, disinfected, and rinsed before handling by another child.

Disinfect cleaned toys by thoroughly spraying them with a bleach solution of ¼ cup bleach to 1 gallon of water. Leave the bleach solution on the surface of the toys for at least 2 minutes before drying with a paper towel, or allow them to air dry. If you soak toys in a bleach solution, use 1 tablespoon bleach to 1 gallon of water, and soak the toys for at least 10 minutes.

Microwave Delights: Less Time To Prepare, Equal Enjoyment

The microwave cooking phenomenon that began in the 1970s has become a modern staple for many families incessantly on the go.

But you can still retain the freshness of oven-baked food if you know what recipes to use.

If you're too busy trying to make obligations for the coming holidays, then follow some of these recipes for microwave cooking.

FLORENTINE POLPETTONE

1¾ pounds lean ground beef
1 cup seasoned bread crumbs
1 cup milk
½ cup chopped onion
1 egg
½ teaspoon salt
1 10-ounce package thawed frozen chopped spinach
1 slightly beaten egg
1 8-ounce cup ricotta cheese
Tomato-mushroom sauce
Grated parmesan cheese

Combine ground beef, bread crumbs, milk, onion, one egg, and salt; mix well. Reserve ⅓ of meat mixture. Line four 10-ounce baking dishes with remaining meat mixture. Press all liquid from spinach; combine with slightly beaten egg and ricotta cheese. Place equal amount of spionach mixture in each meat-lined baking dish. Shape reserved meat mixture into four patties; place over spinach mixture; seal. Place in microwave oven on several layers of paper towels to absorb possible runover. Cover lightly.

Microwave on high 5 minutes. Rotate ¼ turn. Microcook additional 5-10 minutes. Remove loaves from microwave oven; cover with aluminum foil. Allow to stand 5 minutes. Unmold each serving. Top with tomato-mushroom sauce and sprinkle with Parmesan cheese.

Tomato-Mushroom Sauce:

Melt 1 tablespoon butter in medium bowl or 4-cup measuring cup. Stir in 1 cup sliced mushrooms and ½ cup chopped onion. Microwook on high just until tender. Stir in 2 cups (two 8-ounce cans) tomato sauce, ⅛ teaspoon garlic powder, and ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Microcook 2-3 minutes, stirring twice. Serve with Florentine Popettone. Makes about 2⅔ cups sauce. Yield: 4 individual servings.

SPINACH-MOZZARELLA BAKE

1 pound lean ground beef
½ cup chopped onion
⅔ cup (6-ounce can) Italian tomato paste
1 cup water
2 cups hot, cooked, drained elbow macaroni
1½ cups (6 ounces) shredded mozzarella cheese
1 package (10 ounces) well-drained, thawed frozen chopped spinach.

Crumble ground beef in 2-quart microwave-safe dish. Add onion. Microcook on high 5 minuts. Stir to break up meat. Microcook additional 2 minutes or until meat is cooked. Drain off fat. Stir in Italian paste and water. Place macaroni in bottom of 12 by 7 by 2-inch microwave-safe dish. Sprinkle 1 cup cheese over top. Spoon meat mixture over macaroni layer. Top with spinach. Sprinkle remaining cheese over top. Microcook on high 10-15 minutes, rotating dish every 5 minutes. Serves 4-6.

GOUDA CRAB DIP

1 small wheel (7 ounces) Gouda cheese, shredded
1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese
½ cup light cream or half and half
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon dry mustard
⅛ teaspoon garlic powder
5 drops hot pepper sauce
1 can (6 ounces) crab meat, rinsed, drained, and cartilage removed
Rye bread cubes

Combine all ingredients except crab meat and bread cubes in 1-quart microwavable container. Microwave, uncovered, at medium high (70 percent) 5 to 7 minutes, or until mixture is smooth. Gently stir in crab meat. Microwave, uncovered, at medium high 1 to 2 minutes, or until hot throughout. Seve with rye bread cubes as dippers. Yields 2 cups.

Some meals work out great in the microwave. A recipe included here, pork-vegetable stir fry, in many ways can be as tasteful as this photo of an orange mustard pork dish. The pork-vegetable stir fry uses apple juice to give some fruit flavoring.

PORK-VEGETABLE STIR FRY

1 pound boneless lean pork, cut into ¼ -inch slices
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 tablespoons soy sauce
2 cloves garlic, minced
2 stalks fresh broccoli (about 8 ounces)
2 tablespoons apple juice
2 teaspoons instant chicken bouillon
1 teaspoon sugar
2 cups sliced fresh mushrooms
1 cup sliced celery
½ cup sliced red or green pepper
6 green onions, cut into 1-inch pieces

Combine pork and cornstarch in 2-quart microwave-safe casserole dish. Mix to coat evenly. Stir in soy sauce and garlic. Remove flower part from broccoli; set aside for later. Peel stems and cut into bite-sized pieces; add to pork. Cover with casserole lid.

Microwave on high 5 to 6 minutes or until pork is no longer pink, stirring once. Stir in apple jiuce, bouillon, and sugar. Push pork toward center of casserole. Place remaining vegetables, including broccoli flowers that have been cut into small pieces, near edge of casserole. Cover.

Microwave on high 5 to 6 minutes or until vegetables are tender-crisp, stirring once. Serve with hot cooked rice or chow mein noodles. Serves 4.

MICROWAVE CREAMED CORN

1¼ cup dried corn
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
3½ cup milk
2 teaspoons sugar

Mix. Pour in cassserole. Cover. Cook 10 minutes. Stir. Let stand 15 minutes. Cook 15 minutes.

Stir into mixture:
6 cups sliced pears

Pour mixture into 9-inch unbaked pie shell. Dot with 1½ tablespoons butter. Cover with top crust, sealing edges of the two crusts together. Prick top lightly. Top with additional butter.

Variations: Substitute half of fruit requirement with apples, which blend together well.

ANSWER — Gwen Stewart-Fauber, Yardley, sent this answer in for Renee Nissley of Middletown.

To roast sunflower seeds, shake seeds in a paper bag with salt and 1 tablespoon vegetable oil. Spread seeds in a thin layer on a cookie sheet, place in oven at 250 degrees overnight. Leave oven door open an inch or two to allow steam to escape.

Hampshire, and Suffolk breeds are housed together inside the barn and run together in the pasture. In addition to feeding, students are taught how to herd, lead, wash, and fit sheep.

"It's amazing how students excel in different aspects of care for the goats," Biddle said. "Every kid is required to know how to do every step in caring for an animal, but at chore time, I allow them to specialize in what they do best and enjoy," Biddle said of the washing, feeding, and shearing required. He believes this concept builds teamwork and they haven't had problems with students refusing to cooperate.

Biddle requires that students abide by 4-H rules for showing, which require the showman to clip his own animal at shows.

Students participate in showing at the 4-H events, Philadelphia Fair, and the Pennsylvania Farm Show.

Beef and Horse Clubs

Larger animals are a bit overwhelming to most students. But a few students select Angus and Hereford cattle for showing.

A few select horses after competing an extensive preparation course. Training includes care for horses including an equine science class, proper etiquette of riding, and recreational riding.

After several years of showing horses, a senior student named Daisy wants to go to college and major in equine studies. Daisy's dream is to board and train horses.

Team Effort

While Biddle focuses on sheep, beef, pigs, and dairy goats, he said it would not be possible without the help of three other assistant instructional advisers.

Ken Nale is in charge of the seeing eye, service dog, and fish projects. He also does most of the 4-H paperwork. Sue Orban is responsible for recreational riding and horsemanship. Gary Laughlin, assistant instruction adviser at the animal center, oversees horses and animal-assisted activities.

All four work in the barns with the students and teach in the classroom.

The team wants to encourage more science fair projects with animals. Biddle would like to see students acquire livestock that is good enough to export to other countries. He asked, "What better way is there to teach kids about government regulations?"

Another goal is to incorporate animal sciences into all K-12 curriculum. In January, Biddle is scheduled to teach animal courses to a fifth grade and a seventh grade class.

"Three components enable students to succeed and be successful," Biddle said.

This includes teaching students to do one step at a time, which in turn encourages self-esteem and a feeling of significant and competence in students. That leads to prosocial self-esteem with kids working together for a common goal. Another component is intrinsic motivation — having the spark or desire to go ahead to carry out a project.

"It's exciting to see students progress in the clubs. Kids want to clip their own animal because it is their project, not mine," Biddle said.

- Peanuts in a shell under the tree

Extension Agent Saves Family From Fire

ST. MARYS (Elk Co.) — Most people don't consider a county extension agent a lifesaver. But, don't tell that to the Jeff Cole family of St. Marys.

Four members of the family, including a newborn baby, escaped serious harm in a house fire thanks to a smoke detector program initiated and coordinated by Barbara Miller, family living agent in Elk and Cameron counties.

Under the program, which is supported by area service clubs, parents of newborn infants are given the smoke detectors before they leave the hospital. Since its inception in 1994, more than 200 detectors have been distributed.

"Before the new mother leaves the hospital, the family is given a smoke detector because at that point parents have more incentive to do the proper thing. They are motivated to do what is right for their child," Miller said.

According to Steve Gerg, chief of the Crystal Fire Department in St. Marys, Cole was awakened by the smoke detector, which he had not yet installed, but was on a shelf in the basement.

"He went to the kitchen, opened the door to the basement and was greeted by flames," Gerg said. "He quickly got his family out safely and called the fire department. We responded and extinguished the fire, which caused extensive damage."

Miller said she got the idea for the program from a national program, the Smoke Alarm for Every Home Foundation, which was established in Clearfield County in 1990 and is now based in Amherst, N.Y. The foundation promotes the use of smoke alarms in every home in an effort to reduce the number of deaths caused by fires.

"As a family living agent, I have a real concern for health and safety," Miller said. "In informing new parents on what to expect with their child, we combine child development information found in our extension publication, Visits with You and Your Baby, with information on safety in the home."

According to the U.S. Fire Administration, fire and burns are the second leading cause of accidental death for children under age 5 in the home. "The foundation gave me statistics showing that having a working smoke detector in a home cuts the risk of dying in a fire in half. Yet, an estimated 60 percent of homes in this country don't have a working smoke detector."

Miller took that information to the Rotary, Lions, and Kiwanis clubs in Elk County and convinced them to support the program. Funding also is provided by the auxiliaries of the St. Marys Regional Medical Center and the Elk County Regional Medical Center in Ridgway.

"I felt strongly about the value of the smoke detector program," Miller said. "While it was not a normal function of the extension office, someone was needed to get the program moving and to coordinate it. I was able to get the necessary support and I serve as coordinator, issuing quarterly reports to the service clubs and the hospitals."

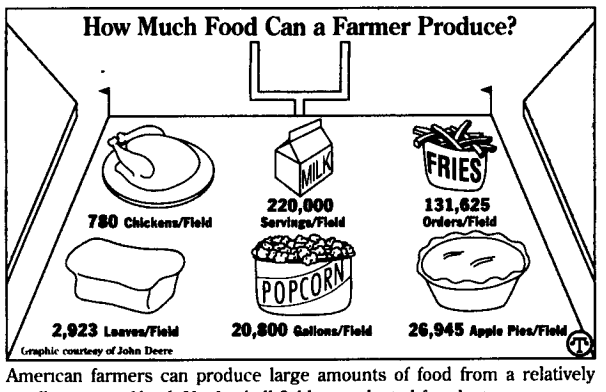
When the program first began, the smoke detectors were available at the Elk County Extension Office for first-time parents to pick up.

"It was not very convenient, so response was limited," Miller said. "Now we provide them at the hospital and it has been much more effective. I work with hospital personnel and keep them supplied with the detectors and information on proper installation."

Miller was out of town, at the time of the fire, but a member of her advisory board told her that a detector provided through the program saved the family from harm.

"In seeking support for the program, I always pointed out that if it saved one life it was worth the effort," she said. "You can imagine how happy and thrilled I was to hear that four lives had been saved."

Touchdown By The American Farmer



American farmers can produce large amounts of food from a relatively small amount of land If a football field was adapted for planting purposes, its 1 3 acres could produce a large harvest of any one of the foods above

(NAPS)—It is no secret that American farmers produce the safest, most abundant supply of food in the world. On average, each American farmer provides food for 132 people.

A farmer can take a relatively small amount of land and produce remarkable quantities of healthful food. Imagine a football field, about 1.3 acres, planted with crops from the various food groups.

Planted in corn, a football field with fertile soil could produce enough corn to feed 780 chickens—that's more than 2,000 three-piece chicken dinners!

The football field could produce enough wheat for 2,923 loaves of bread. That's enough for one loaf of bread each day for the next eight years!

That football field could have a barn filled with nearly 2,000 milk cows Careful management and twice-daily milkings would produce each day an 8-ounce serving of milk for more than 220,000 schoolchildren.

If potatoes were planted in that field, you could make 131,625 trips through the drive-thru—picking up one order of french fries each time.

And if you're into snacking, no problem. One football field could provide you with 20,800 gallons of popped popcorn, enough to more than fill an average home swimming pool

One year's harvest from a 1 3-acre apple orchard could provide enough fruit for your family to enjoy a large apple pie every day for the next 73 years!

American farmers can produce surprisingly large amounts of healthy food from a relatively small area of land, whether measured in football fields or acres.

Sheepberry Farms, Halifax, recently entered three natural color fleeces at the 45th Annual California National Wool Show, Mendocino County, Boonville. This national wool show receives fleeces throughout the United States to compete for a variety of ribbons and prizes. With such a large wool show, the Zerphey's were greatly surprised to receive a first place ribbon. This is the first out of state ribbon Sheepberry Farms' wool has received.

Extension Association Hosts 'Breakfast Of Champions'

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Recognition Breakfast of Champions held by the Pennsylvania Extension Association of Family and Consumer Sciences had much to celebrate at the annual event held Nov. 6.

More than 30 members were recognized for state, regional, and national achievements and 11 new members were initiated into the Association.

Projects must first win at the state level before progressing to regional competition, and then at the regional level before national competition.

National Winners

Nancy Crago of Allegheny County received the NEAFCS Greenwood Fellowship Award for developing and implementing an international study seminar exchange program with Poland for extension family and consumer science educators.

Nancy is on a sabbatical working toward a doctorate in extension education.

Brenda Bernatowicz of Erie County and Barbara McKee of Armstrong County received national professional development awards for continued excellence. Brenda holds leadership positions within the state affiliates of NEAFCS and AAFCS.

Barbara, a 25-year extension agent, has been involved in professional development her entire career. She works extensively with the youth-at-risk audience on environmental, safety, and health issues. While the emphasis of her program changes, she continues to learn about, develop, and deliver new and innovative programs.

For distinguished service, Shirley Bixby and Karen Thomas of Lackawanna County were honored. Bixby strives to help individuals reach full potential in their families, organizations, and communities. She designs leadership training programs to meet the needs of groups. Using the social world concept, she guides adults in transition toward an appreciation of support networks for employment and helps them overcome the isolation of being single in a couple-dominant society.

The Florence Hall Award went to M. Annette Goodling of Montgomery County. Goodling developed the Building Blocks program to increase the well-being of children, familes, and communities by increasing knowledge and skills to create an effective communication system. She received a national award for her 10-week series to empower individuals to make a difference.

Graduates joined a tenant's council, visited schools, joined a Head Start parent group, served on commmunity committees, became mentors for new families, developed job training skills, and volunteered.

State Awards

State award winners in the professional development included Kathryn James of Carbon County, New Professional Award; J. Dawn Bowers ot Tioga County, Para-Professionals Award; and Cynthia Javor of Allegheny County, Outstanding Family Living Award.

Regional Awards

Eastern Regional Award winners included Frederick Davis, multicounty resource management agent, who received the Dean Don Felker Financial Management Award for developing a 17½ -hour comprehensive train-the-trainer series.

The program is used by county social service agencies to educate case managers, administrations, and volunteers to more effectively counsel and interact with clientel on many aspects on financial management for resource-stressed clients.

Media Awards

Communication and media awards were presented for newletters, news articles, radio and television features, overhead transparencies, slide sets, and package programs.

Nancy Grotevan won state and regional awards for the Pike County newsletter, "New Directions," which reflects the new course that the Pike County Cooperative Extension has taken in programming efforts to cover a broad range of programs related to the varied interests and needs of a fast growing county.

Another newsletter award at the state level was earned by team members Janice Stoudnour, Jane Mecum, Sandra Hall, Beth Van Horn, and Norma Lash.

Jane Beightol of Mifflin County also received a newsletter award.

Team members Mary Alice Gettins of Beaver County, Cynthia Javor of Allegheny County, and Beat for 20 minutes. Add vanilla and salt. pour on buttered tins, making a layer ⅔ -inch thick. When cold cut into squares and roll in confectioners' sugar or shredded coconut.

Marshmallows

Are Sweaters On Your Gift List?

I recently asked my two children to make a gift list so I could start my holiday shopping. Both lists included sweaters. As I started my shopping, I noticed piles and piles of sweaters made from a variety of fibers, ranging from wool to silk, rayon, and acrylic. Natural fibers, such as angora, mohair, cashmere, and shetland are especially popular. Many of the sweaters feature a variety of special decorative trims that often requires special care. If sweaters are one of the items you will be buying this year, here are some tips from the International Fabricare Institute.

What should you look for when purchasing sweaters?

• Examine the sweater carefully. The soft feel of many of today's sweaters is created by loosely knit, low-twist yarns that have a tendency to ball up or mat with water.

• Check the seams of knitted sweaters for signs of unraveling and fraying.

• If purchasing a sweater with decorative trim, ask about the retailer's return policy.

• Check the care instructions. If there is any doubt about care procedures ask your professional drycleaner to pre-test a small area to determine how the sweater will dryclean

Consider the fibers.

• ACRYLIC-Acrylic knit sweaters are difficult to distinguish from wool or other fibers so be sure to read the care and content label. Acrylic is a thermoplastic fiber and requires special handling Acrylic can be effected by heat. The fibers may be stretched as a result of high heat used in drying and ironing Lay flat to dry, if recommended by the care label, tumble dry at low temperatures.

• ANGORA - Angora rabbit hair is blended with wool and synthetic fibers to create a very soft fabric. Shrinkage is the biggest problem. Hand washing is recommended and will be less damaging than machine washing. Lay flat to dry.

• CAMEL'S HAIR/CASHMERE / MOHAIR - These fibers are soft, touchable wools that come from the camel family and goats. Due to their construction, most sweaters made from these fibers are "dry clean only." Fabrics made of these fibers generally have a nap or brushed finish that will result in matting and pilling, especially in areas of wear.

• CHENILLE - Chinelle yarns resemble a pipe cleaner or caterpillar and have a pile-like surface. In fact, chenille is French for caterpillar. On loosely woven or knitted sweaters the yarns tend to snap or pull out easily. Normal rubbing and friction on the fabric will initiate the damage. The agitation of washing can further damage the sweater. For washable chenille articles, hand washing may be safer than machine washing, even if the article is labeled as such. Lay the sweater flat to dry.

• WOOL - Wool is a protein fiber spun from sheep's hair and is popular because it is durable, comfortable, and warm. Wool requires special handling when cleaning . If the care label is not followed, shrinkage may result. If the care label suggests hand washing, use cool water and a mild detergent. Avoid alkaline detergents and chlorine bleach. Soak up to five minutes and rinse thoroughly. Squeeze out excess water without wringing or twisting. Lay flat to dry, away from sunlight and direct heat.

How do you keep your sweaters looking their best?

• Follow the care label closely to prevent shrinkage or stretching.

• If recommended on the care label, tumble dry at low temperatures. Otherwise, lay flat to dry.

• Give sweaters a 24-hour rest between wearings.

• Keep sweaters clean. Treat stains right away.

• Make a pattern of knit sweaters before washing by tracing their outline on a piece of brown or krafe paper. This will allow the sweater to be blocked to its original size.

• Brush sweaters after each wearing. This will revive the nap and free the garment of surface soil.

• If wool sweaters get wet, let them dry at room temperature away from heat, then brush with the nap.

• Check sweaters for unraveling and fraying, and secure any loose yarns so the sweater can withstand normal use and care without further unraveling.

• Place folded sweaters over padded hangers in a well-ventilated closet or place in drawers. Do not hang sweaters from the shoulders; the weight of the sweater can cause it to stretch. Be sure to empty pockets, remove belts, and close zippers.

Remember that delicate items require special care and handling. Take good care of your sweaters!

Baking With Reduced Fats

LEESPORT, (Berks County) –Contrary to popular belief, you can bake with reduced-fat margarine and light butter. These products make it possible to reduce fat by more than half and still enjoy light, tender, buttery-tasting cakes, crisp cookies, flaky pie crusts, and other goodies that are not easily made fat-free.

Because reduced-fat margarine and butter are diluted with water, they cannot be substituted for their full-fat counterparts on a one-for-one basis. To compensate for the extra water, substitute three-fourths as much of the light product for the full-fat butter or margarine. For instance, if the cake recipe calls for one cup of butter, use three-fourths cup of light butter. Be sure to choose a brand that contains 5 to 6 grams of fat and 50 calories per tablespoon. (Full-fat brands contain 11 grams of fat and 100 calories per tablespoon). Brands with less fat than this do not work well in baking.

Be careful not to overbake your reduced-fat creations, as they can become dry. Bake cakes and quick breads at 325°F to 350°F, biscuits and scones at 375° to 400°F, and cookies at 300°F to 325°F. Check the product for doneness a few minutes before the end of the usual baking time. Then enjoy!

Farmer Finds Help With Orthopedic Impairments

NEW CASTLE (Lawrence Co.) — Don Bergbigler worked on a livestock farm all his live, but at age 51, he thought he may have to give it up. He has significant orthopedic impairments and a hearing loss.

Although his orthopedic impairments limit his reaching, lifting, climbing and other activities that he had been able to perform in the past, he was attempting to continue to raise 100 head of beef cattle, buying replaceents and selling beef animals oh a regular basis. He raises about 140 acres of hay, corn and other crops to support the livestock operation. He was attempting to perform all these tasks but found himself waiting for help. His three sons are employed in off-farm jobs.

The long-term health effects of the stress of farming on his legs and upper body were of great concern with respect to his ability to continue. Don had a conversation with Douglas Schaufler of the AgrAbility for Pennsylvanians. This organization promotes success in agriculture for people with disabilities and their families. An evaluation was completed and some recommendations and accommodations were made. Schaufler then contacted Lou Perretta, counselor in the Office of Vocational Rehabilitation, New Castle, with a concern for Bergbigler's problems. The Office of Vocational Rehabilitation works with people with disabilities to find employment or to help with accommodations for people to maintain their current jobs. Such was the case with Bergbigler.

Perretta met with Don on-site and evaluated his limitations and work situation. There were some recommendations from AgrAbility that were discussed and found to be appropriate. The first was the need for bulk feed bins for two barns. This would enable Don to feed his cattle without having to lift and carry heavy feed bags. An auditory evaluation was also done to see if Don would benefit from hearing aids.

He had difficulty maneuvering over uneven ground in his field and hauling equipment and feed. An all-terrain vehicle with a dump bed was considered, especially over the hilly terrain on which much of the farm sits. Don also needed access steps for his tractors and also tractor seats with high backs, arms rests and lumbar support. There was also a problem with mounting the three point-hitch sprayer as the current set-up required a great deal of exertion to mount.

An agreement was then made between Counselor Perretta and Bergbigler for the purchase and installation of this equipment. Some of the equipment was taken care of by Bergbigler and some by the Office of Vocational Rehabilitation. The bulk feed bins, ATV and provision of hearing aids have enabled Don to continue his farm operaion on an independent basis. He no longer has to wait for help from others or risk re-injuring himself while feeding livestock, traversing his fields or communicating with others. He should be able to continue on his farm for many years to come.

Don Bergbigler and Lou Perretta meet at Bergbigler's farm to make disability evaluations and recommendations.

Forcing Bulbs for Winter Color

Tulip, crocus, daffodil and grape hyacinth bulbs can be 'forced' into bloom indoors during the winter. This is the second of a two-part series on how to force bulbs for winter enjoyment.

Hyacinths and narcissus (particularly Paperwhites and Soleil d'Or) can be forced into bloom in water rather than soil. Place the bulbs in a shallow container 1/3 full of clean, coarse gravel, and then add enough gravel to hold the bulb in position. Add water just up to the base of the bulb. Be sure not to let water rise above the base of the bulb. Put the bulbs in a cool dark place (40-50° F). When the bulbs have formed good root systems and shoots are two to three inches tall, bring the bulbs into a bright room for flowering.

After flowering, place the bulbs outdoors in the garden soil. Expect their booms to be greatly diminished for several years.

Buying an amaryllis unpotted bulb is easily forced into bloom for several years. Choose the largest bulb and choose a pot only 1-2 inches wider than the bulb itself. Amaryllis requires a dormant period, but not a cold period. Pot the bulb, leaving the top 2/3 exposed, using a soilless potting mixture of peat moss, vermiculite, and perlite. Water the bulb thoroughly with warm water. Water sparingly until the plant begins to grow.

Place the potted bulb in a warm shaded place (65-75° F) until the stalk is 8 inches tall. The plant may then be moved into a sunny location, but the bloom will last longer and have the brightest color if kept out of direct sunlight.

After blooming, remove the flower stalk and place the plant in a sunny location. Water the plant regularly and feed it with general purpose plant fertilizer every two weeks. When all danger of frost has passed, put the plant outside in a shady location and continue to water and feed it regularly during the summer.

Before the first frost, bring the amaryllis inside and allow the foliage to die down by gradually withholding water. Store the bulb in its pot for about two months in a dark place. After this dormant period, the plant can be brought back out, the top two inches of the soilless mixture replaced with fresh mixture, and the process repeated.

After three years, repot the amaryllis bulb by completely replacing the soil in the pot.

It will probably need some welding, bodywork, paint, and an engine overhaul. Is there a high school vocational-technical school willing to tackle the project. Urffer is not looking for a free ride, but he remembers when he was a vocational student they sometimes lacked for work, which didn't help the students learn.

QUESTION — Anne Kavaliavskas, Dalton, wants to find a kit plus O ring for Laing Model SM 202-BTW Serial #468-151751 water circulator for a coal stove. She knows that this model has been discontinued.

ANSWER — Elaine Bowes, Loganton, wanted a pattern or a source for locating it for the doll dubbed "Cry Baby" or "Pouting Patty." The doll wears 18-month child's clothing. Write to Elaine at R.2, Box 69, Laganton, PA 17747.

A Lehigh Valley reader said a good source for finding the patterns is Home-Sew, P.O. Box 4099, Bethlehem, PA 18018-0099, (610) 867-3833, which has them in their catalog. It's a nice little catalog!

ANSWER — For Jerry Deardorff, York Springs, who wanted to know where to find a headlight lens for a 1940 Ford tractor and for Andy Kramaric, Wallingford, who is looking for a detail about a bracket for an axle on a Ford tractor. Here's a reply by Bob Kunkle, Mullica Hill, N.J. The answer may be the 9N-2N-8N-NAA Newsletter published by Gerald W. Rinaldi, P.O. Box 235, Chelsea, VT 05038-0235. The newsletter has classifieds, reprints, and reproduction outlets. Also, N. Blake from Landenberg indicated that those interested can contact Stevens Tractor for a catalog at RR1 Box 32B, Coushatta, LA 71019, (800) 932-9800.

ANSWER — Lynn Rossi, Lititz, wanted to know where to buy vanilla syrup like that used in vanilla coke. Thanks to E. D. Parent, Hamburg, for the source: Silmo Milkmaid Syrup Company, 97 Cove St., New Bedford, MA 02744, (508) 996-8851. Besides vanilla, they stock chocolate, coffee, and strawberry syrups for milk as well as many other (fruity) flavors for iced drinks. Parent likes the vanilla and coffee flavors in Coke. Parent believes Silmo ships.

ANSWER — Bernice Jones, Terra Alta, was willing to pay a reasonable price to obtain 3M copy paper, 263 combo pack, for an old 051 copier with a photo-lamp in it. The paper is white and has a thin pink sheet to use with it. Thanks to Mabel Zimmerman, of New Enterprise, who has 55 sheets of both the white and pink 3M copy paper. If Bernice sends enough for shipping, Zimmerman will mail it to her. Contact Zimmerman at (814) 766-2325.

ANSWER — M. Zimmerman of New Enterprise wondered if anyone has the words to the clock chime tunes of "Lourdes" and "Trinity." Thanks to Mabel Zimmerman for the information. The Westminster tune's words are "Lord, through this hour, Be thou our Guide, So by Thy power, No foot shall slide."

ANSWER — Ron Young of Layton, N.J., wanted to know where to purchase a stalk binder that ties cornstalks with two knots, one at the bottom and one in the middle of the bundles. Thanks to Elani Beiler, Ronks, for the answer, who says they have a McD corn binder that they call "low-tie" that would cut and tie down corn bundles low, but you would have to tie the second tie by hand. The Beilers sell and repair corn binders at (717) 687-8065.

ANSWER — A reader found a snake skin in her finished basement. How does she catch the snake and release it? Thanks to John Zimmerer of Fallsten, Md., who says that if the reader would leave the outside cellar door ajar overnight, the snake may be found in the morning draped over the cellar steps, sunning itself.

ANSWER — A reader from Central wanted to know how to care for philodendron-type houseplants so that the leaves don't turn yellow and fall off, leaving only a long, ugly bare stem. Gwen Steward-Fauber, Yardley, noted that philodendrons do well being ignored for six days a week and then given enough water to wet the soil — not soak it — the same day of the week. The plants like moderate sun, not full sun (it burns the large leaves). They like a good loam, equal parts sand and clay and topsoil, with rocks in the bottom of the pot so the roots won't rot. When root-bound, the plant needs to be repotted.

ANSWER — Mary Breiner, Tamaqua, was looking for something to clean an apple butter kettle. Thanks to Gwen Stewart-Fauber, Yardley. Gwen noted that for cleaning the kettle, washing walls, or cutting greasy dirt, use five gallons of water (preferably hot), 2 cups ammonia, 1 cup vinear, and ½ cup soda. It makes suds, cleans anything (except plastic that's been painted), and smells awful.

COW NEAR DEATH Survives with help of

VITAMIX

Stephen E. Stoltzfus of Kinzer, Pa., nearly lost his cow until he started using Vitamix.

Stephen states: "I had a cow that had become so ill the vet told me she would be dead within a few hours, however; I wasn't about to give up. I fed the cow 2 heaping teaspoons of Vitamix every hour for eight hours and within two days she was up walking around like nothing ever happened. This particular cow's problem was that she had a hard delivery and was internally injured from the birthing process. After the use of Vitamix the cow recovered fully, now milks 65 lbs. a day and was bred back after her troubled delivery in just 60 days. Stephen goes on to say, 'I also had a donkey that had a life threatening (terminal), problem and after what I saw Vitamix do for the cow, I used it on the donkey. Now the donkey is very healthy.'

"The most recent incident I've had on the farm was a cow that had a quarter completely drop out. It was seriously infected and she was very ill. I used the same dosage as I used for the cow that had just freshened (2 heaping teaspoons of Vitamix every hour for eight hours). The cows quarter healed up and she now milks fine on three quarters. In all these cases I did it without a vet or antibiotics but, by using Vitamix. The last time I used an antibiotic or a vet was over a year ago and this saves the farm a great deal of money. The usual procedure for using Vitamix would be 2 heaping teaspoons 6 times a day except for in more serious cases."

Vitamix is made by the same people who make Formula M.

Optimum To Develop Market Products That Improve World's Food Supply

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind.– "A new agriculture system driven by consumer demands will revolutionize what crops are grown in the future, and biotechnology will be at the heart of his change," said D.L. Reasons, president and chief executive officer of Optimum, L.L.C., the newly formed DuPont-Pioneer Hi-Bred International joint venture.

Reasons made his remarks in a keynote speech at the 1997 National Conference on Agribusiness at Purdue University.

Reasons said value enhanced food that contains added health and nutritional benefits, which could potentially reduce risks for such afflictions as osteoporosis and heart disease, are possible through biotechnology. Reasons also said, "We will be able to develop industrial polymers and fiber-based products from renewable resources such as corn and soybeans." This new agricultural system has the potential to add significant value to current grain and oilseed-based feed and food ingredients markets well into the new century, noted Reasons.

Among key trends he cited in the new agriculture are the enormous influence being brought to the creation of products and services by consumers who demand better food, the rapid expansion of biotechnology and information technology, new business partnerships, and expanding global potential.

Reasons said Optimum will focus on "customer-driven innovation to improve the quality and quantity of the world's food supply." This is a significant departure from previous developments in agricultural biotechnology, which have primarily focused on the delivery of pest control through genetics.

For instance, the high oleic soybeans that Optimum will commercialize next year will meet consumers' demands for lower fat and better tasting oils. This newly developed soybean also will provide economic opportunities for farmers, noted Reasons.

Even now, with Optimum's high oil corn there are numerous nutritional benefits for enhancing livestock feed, he said. In fact, the future is bright for such value-added crops. Reasons said value-enhanced corn could occupy 20 to 25 percent of corn production areas in the United States within 10 years.

"We see similar growth in soybeans. Some 20 to 25 percent of U.S. soybean acres could be planted with value-enhanced soybeans in 10 to 15 years," said Reasons.

Internationally, Reasons sees enormous potential for agricultural firms. He said, "We all know theat domestic U.S. agriculture will remain competitive and that firms focused on markets here will enjoy strong demand for their products. But, for globally focused firms, such as Optimum, we believe increased global feed and food demand will mean opportunities no matter what happens at home."

New York Grange Master Joins Task Force

CORTLAND, N.Y. — New York State Grange Master Bruce Croucher is among a number of dairy industry, retail, and consumer advocacy representatives who have been named to Gov. George Pataki's new Dairy Task Force.

The task force is designed to find ways to offset the effects of low milk prices on New York's dairy farmers without negatively impacting milk prices paid by consumers.

"I am very pleased to be participating because the goals of the task force mesh very well with the long-term philosophy and goals of the Grange," said Croucher, a retired math teacher in the Phelps-Clifton Springs school district. "We need to look at solutions to stabilize dairy prices at an adequate level so that farmers can continue to farm."

Milk prices to New York farmers have dropped more than 20 percent since last year. While prices rebounded slightly in August, many New York dairy farmers will suffer a significant loss for the year — losses threatening their survival.

"Dairy farming is a vital part of our rural economy," Pataki said in announcing the creation of the task force. "This situation is not only hurting dairy farmers, but the communities where they live. We must do everything we can to ensure the survival of the family farm in New York State."

The task force is expected to report back to Pataki within 90 days ways in which to ensure consumers continue to have a safe, locally produced supply of affordable milk, and ways to ensure family dairy farmers receive an adequate return on their investment and labor costs.

Croucher's appointment is of special significance for the Grange, a rural/fraternal organization of some 15,000 members statewide. The organization is convening its 125th annual convention October 24-28 in Binghamton, and among issues up for discussion is the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact. The Grange believes New York's adoption of the compact — which would set the price for Class 1 milk sold in member states — is essential to the future of the family farm.

New York is not a member of the Compact even though the organization's language was drafted by the New York Legislative Commission on Dairy Industry Development in the late 1980s. The Compact now includes six New England states, and each member is allowed to set milk prices above the Federal Order Price.

Pork Exports Turn To Profit

DES MOINES, Iowa — U.S. pork exports are translating into profitability for U.S. pork producers. In the past decade, demand for pork at the producer level has increased nearly 10 percent, due largely in part to the success of U.S. pork exports.

According to Nick Giordano, assistant vice president for foreign trade at the National Pork Producers Council (NPPC), "During 1995, the U.S. pork industry was a net exporter for the first time in decades. In 1996, the U.S. pork industry exported over $1 billion worth of pork products. Now the second largest exporter of pork in the world, the U.S. pork industry is well positioned to become the world's leading exporter of pork within the next few years."

Not only do U.S. pork exports improve profitability for America's pork producers, they generate considerable economic benefits for the entire U.S. economy. The Economic Research Service (ERS) of the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) calculates that for each dollar of value-added agriculture exports such as pork, $1.63 in additional U.S. economic activity is generated. The ERS also calculates that every billion dollars in pork exports creates an additional 23,000 new jobs in the U.S. economy. NPPC estimates that in 1996, U.S. pork exports added approximately $10 per head to cash hog prices.

"U.S. pork producers are the lowest-cost producers of pork in the world. As countries overseas continue to develop, we'll see more meat consumption in the diet. This will translate into more opportunity for the U.S. pork industry," Giordano said, adding that trade agreements such as the Uruguay Round and the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) have also created excellent opportunities for U.S. pork exports.

Japan is the largest export market for the U.S. pork industry, followed by the NAFTA countries. Since NAFTA took effect, U.S. pork exports to Canada have increased and U.S. pork exports to Mexico have significantly increased market share, despite the devaluation of the peso.

USDA forecasts agricultural exports to reach $60 billion this year with imports expected at approximately $30 billion. Thus, agricultural trade results in a huge surplus for the United States. And according to USDA, U.S. exports in 1997 are forecasted to increase by as much as 35 percent from 1996 levels.

"As we approach the 21st century, international trade is becoming increasingly important to the U.S. pork industry," Giordano reported.

Licensing Requirements for the Green Industry

Do you go to work and get the feeling that business is becoming more complex? Business regulation is a complex issue and appears to become more complicated with each passing year. Laws and regulations that affect your business are unavoidable. Most of the regulatory items that business owners have to abide by were deemed necessary for the public good.

Some of the laws and regulations toward business apply in almost all situations, while some are very specific to certain businesses and occupations. Ignorance of the law and regulations does not free a business owner nor the business from responsibility for compliance.

Ignorance will not protect businesses from inspections, fines and/or legal action from employees, customers, neighbors or government agencies. Therefore it is absolutely imperative that all business owners stay informed of the new laws and regulations that affect their livelihood.

Generally speaking, almost all business activities you engage in will require a license or licenses to operate. Many businesses and occupations will have to obtain licenses from the federal government, from the state and/or the city or county in which the businesses operate. Green Industry businesses bear a heavy load of laws and regulations for several reasons:

- Because many have employees
- Because they collect and deposit sales tax
- Because they apply restricted pesticides
- Because some produce, process & sell food products
- Because some drive large trucks and trailers

• Because they sell plants in containers.

So what licenses might I need to obtain to operate my Green Business?

Licenses to have may include:

• PA Sales Tax License

• Nursery Dealer Certificate License

• Commercial Drivers License (CDL)

• Pesticide Application Business License

• Landscape Architects Registration.

Non-licensure items that may be needed to operate your business in your own locale:

•Federal Employee Identification Number (Need to have before you can get most licenses)

• Zoning permits from the State, County and/or Township

• Township permits and adherence to ordinances.

Pennsylvania Sales Tax Licensing

Everyone operating a green business in the commonwealth should have a sales tax identification number. How do you go about obtaining a sales tax number?

Obtain a Federal Employer Identification number. This number can be attained by filling out Form SS-4, "Employer Identification Number Application". This form can be obtained from the IRS by calling the Philadelphia office at (215) 961-3980. Obtain a copy of Pennsylvania Combined Registration Forms and Instructions. This form is commonly referred to as the PA-100 form. This form can be obtained from the Pennsylvania Dept. of Revenue, Bureau of Registration and Discovery in Harrisburg at (717)783-8839.

The PA-100 form is used to register an Enterprise for certain services and taxes administered by the Pennsylvania Department of Revenue and Pennsylvania Department of Labor and Industry. Sections 1-14, of the form are designed to request general information about your business. There are additional sections of the PA-100, namely Section 17 Part 1 (Sales Tax License and Related Services) and Part 4 (Sales Tax exempt Status Certificate of Exemption) which should be filled out by persons involved in the Green Industry.

Nursery Dealer Certificate License

The nursery and greenhouse operators who sell plants in containers are regulated in Pennsylvania by the Bureau of Plant Industry, a Division of the Pennsylvania Dept. of Agriculture (PDA). The purpose of the program is to assure the consumer of a "pest-free" plant product.

Businesses that sell potted plants must obtain a Nursery Dealers Certificate. Information and applications can be obtained from any of the seven regional offices of the Dept. of Agriculture or the state office in Harrisburg

. Greenhouses are subject to periodic inspections for pests by inspectors from the PDA, so it is mandatory you have your license up to date if your facility is ever inspected. A very valuable part of this program is the yearly List of Certified Nurseries that provides the names and addresses of over 4,000 nurseries and greenhouses in PA. (What a wonderful source for developing new customers for your business!)

Commercial Drivers License

As a result of the Federal Commercial Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1986, Pennsylvania established a Commercial Driver Licensing Program. This program has been developed to improve driver quality, ensure that commercial drivers have the skills needed to operate commercial vehicles and to prevent drivers from having more than one drivers license.

CDL's may come into play within your Green business if you or an employee is operating a combination of vehicles with a gross weight of 26,001 pounds or more, provided the vehicle being towed is in excess of 10,000 pounds; a single vehicle with a gross vehicle weight (GVWR) of 26,001 pounds; any size vehicle which transports hazardous materials and is required to be placarded in accordance with Department regulations.

To qualify for the CDL you must pass two tests: a general knowledge test which is required to be taken by all applicants and a skills test which is dependent upon the type of vehicle intended to drive. To find out more detailed information on how to apply, testing and obtaining the CDL one can obtain the Commercial Driver's Manual, Pub 223(10-95) which is available at any State Police Driver Examination site or one can call 1-800-932-4600.

Pesticide Application

The PDA defines a pesticide application business as a government entity or commercial establishment engaged in the application of pesticides and meeting the definition of a public or commercial applicator. This includes individual operators that meet the definition of a commercial or public applicator.

Seed Treatments Dominate

DALLAS, Tex. – Seed treatment products from Gustafson, Inc., were used by nearly 90 percent of the winners in the 1997 Virginia Small Grains Growers Yield Contest.

The contest featured competition in three divisions – conventional tillage and no-till for wheat growers and a barley growers division

In the conventional-tillage wheat division, 30 of the 36 top finishers indicated the use of a seed treatment, and of those 30, 29 used a Gustafson seed treatment – either Baytan® flowable fungicide, Raxil® fungicide or Vitavax® fungicide. The winner of the division protected his wheat with Raxil, while the next eight finishers utilized Baytan

In the no-till wheat division, Gustafson products were used by 12 of the top 14 finishers. Baytan took four of the top five spots and was used by eight of the top 14 growers One grower in the division used Raxil, and three used Vitavax.

In the barley division, of the 10 winners listed, nine specified a seed treatment, and all nine treated with Vitavax.

"The contest results show that Gustafson products continue to meet the needs of our customers, " said Glen Karaffa, small grains product manager for Gustafson.

FSA Farm Loans For Socially Disadvantaged Persons

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Farm Service (FSA) can make and guarantee loans to socially disadvantaged applicants to buy and operate family-size farms and ranches. Funds specificially for these loans are reserved each year.

A socially disadvantaged farmer is one of a group whose members have been subjected to racial, ethnic, or gender prejudice because of their identity as members of the group without regard to their individual qualities. For purposes of this program, socially disadvantaged groups are women, African Americans, American Indians and Alaskan Natives, Hispanics, and Asians and Pacific Islanders.

Direct loans are made to applicants by FSA and include both farm operating and farm ownership loans.

Guaranteed loans also may be made for ownership or operating purposes and may be made by any lending institution subject to Federal or State supervision (banks, savings and loans, insurance companies and units of the Farm Credit system. Typically, FSA guarantees 90 or 95 percent of a loan against any loss that might be incurred if the loan fails.

Farm ownership loan funds may be used to purchase or enlarge a farm, purchase easements or rights of way needed in the farm's operation, erect or improve buildings such as a dwelling or barn, promote soil and water conservation and development, and pay closing costs.

Farm operating loan funds may be used to purchase livestock, poultry, farm and home equipment, feed, seed, fuel, fertilizer, chemicals, hail and other crop insurance, food, clothing, medical care, and hired labor. Funds also may be used to install or improve water systems for home use, livestock or irrigation, and other improvements.

Individuals, partnerships, joint operations, corporations, and cooperatives primarily and directly engaged in farming and ranching on family-size operations may apply. A family-size farm is considered to be one that a family can operate and manage itself.

In addition to being members of a socially disadvantaged group, individual applicants under this program must meet all requirements for FSA's regular farm loan program assistance. To be eligible, an applicant must, among other requirements:

•Have a satisfactory history of meeting credit obligations;

•Have sufficient education, training, or at least 1 year's experience in managing or operating a farm or ranch within the last 5 years for an operating loan, or, for an ownership loan, have 3 years experience in operating a farm or ranch;

•Be a citizen of the United States (or a legal resident alien);

•Be unable to obtain credit elsewhere at reasonable rates and terms to meet actual needs;

•Possess the legal capacity to incur the obligations of the loan.

In the case of corporations, cooperatives, joint operations, or partnerships, the stockholders, members, or partners holding a majority interest must meet these same eligibility requirements. The borrowing entity must be authorized to operate a farm or ranch in the state where the actual operation is located. In addition, the entity must be owned by U.S. citizens or legal resident aliens, and the socially disadvantaged members must hold a majority interest in the entity.

If the individuals holding a majority interest in the entity are related by blood or marriage, at least one stockholder, member, or partner must operate the family or ranch. If they are not related by blood or marriage, those holding a majority interest must operate the farm or ranch.

Repayment terms for directing operating loans depend on the collateral securing the loan and usually run from 1 to 7 years. Repayment terms for direct ownership loans can be as long as 40 years. Guaranteed loan terms are set by the lender.

Interest rates for direct loans are set periodically according to the Government's cost of borrowing.

Interest rates for guaranteed loans are established by the lender.

Guaranteed loan applications are made with the lender. In cases where a lender is not known to an applicant, personnel at the county offices will find one and will help with an application, either for a direct loan or a guaranteed loan.

Persons who think they might be eligible are urged to contact the Farm Service Agency County Office located at the Farm and Home Center, Baxter said.

The United States Department of Agriculture prohibits discrimination in its programs on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex, religion, age, disability, politicial beliefs and marital or familial status.

fication distinguishes two groups when applying pesticides, these are the private applicators and commercial/public applicators.

A private applicator intends to purchase and/or apply restricted use pesticides for the purpose of producing an agricultural commodity on land which is owned or rented by that person or their employee. Private applicators must obtain initial certification through PDA by passing an exam.

Private applicators must obtain additional credits (6 Core, 6 category credits) at three year intervals, to maintain their certification status. A Commercial/Public applicator must pass a two part exam that is administered by PDA to initially qualify for pesticide certification.

Additional requirements include: If you are in the business of commercial or public application of pesticides then you are required to possess pesticide business application License. Along with this license you must also carry liability insurance at a minimum of $200,000 worth of coverage.

Any vehicles involved in the application phase of a business are required to display the business license number in 3-inch letters and numbers on those application vehicles. Businesses must be licensed to apply general or restricted use pesticides. A license must be obtained indicating the certification category in which the business makes applications. The business must, at all times, employ an applicator certified for each category in which it intends to make a pesticide application. Businesses operating at multiple locations or under more than one name must maintain separate licenses, liability insurance and records for each location and name.

Landscape Architects Registration Law

The Bureau of Professional and Occupational Affairs requires all landscape architects to be licensed in Pennsylvania. You are required to be registered with the State Board of Landscape Architects. This licensure is valid for a two -year period. To renew your license one must obtain 10 hours of continuing education credits every two years.

For more information contact: State Board of Landscape Architects, P.O. Box 2649, Harrisburg PA 17105-2649 or at (717) 783-3397.

Sands Wins Livestock Judging Award

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — A new award was introduced to the Penn State College of Agricultural Sciences and offered through the Department of Dairy and Animal Science this past year.

The annual award, the James E. Work Livestock Judging Award, was developed to support and recognize the diligent efforts and achievements of a deserving undergraduate student at Penn State who excelled in the livestock judging program.

James E. Work and his wife, Joanne, longtime purebred beef cattle producers who reside in Uniontown, presented the award for the first time in 1996. Work is a 1949 graduate of Penn State University with a bachelor's degree in animal production. He was an active member of both the Penn State livestock judging team and Block and Bridle Club. Mr. Work is an active member of the Penn State Stockmen's Club and was recognized as the 1993 distinguished alumnus of the Department of Dairy and Animal Science for his lifelong contributions to animal agriculture.

The annual recipient of the James E. Work Livestock Judging Award is selected from among the undergraduate students who have most recently represented Penn State University on the livestock judging team. The first recipient was Stacey L. Sands of Tunkhannock, who received $1,000 to be used toward her studies at Penn State.

Stacey is a senior in dairy and animal science enrolled in the management-production option, and was a member of both the 1996 Livestock Judging Team and the Horse Judging Team. Keith A. Bryan, instructor in animal science, coached the 1996 Livestock Team and was co-coach of the Horse Judging Team with Brian A. Egan, equine extension assistant.

Although not formally recognized by this award for her achievements as a member of the Penn State Horse Judging Team, Stacey distinguished herself at the All-American Quarter Horse Congress in Columbus, Ohio. The Congress hosted the largest intercollegiate judging contest in the nation, with a total of 36 teams competing in 1996. With consistent placings and solid oral reasons, Stacey worked her way to achieving the honor of being the high individual overall in the intercollegiate contest. She was also the third-placed individual in judging performance classes. Stacey helped the Penn State team to finish 7th in judging performance classes and 11th overall in the contest. For finishing as the high individual overall, Stacey's accomplishments were rewarded with a $500 scholarship, a pair of custom-made Mercedes boots, AQHA silversmith watch, Quarter Horse Congress boot bag, and two bronze medallions.

Stacey started off her intercollegiate livestock judging carrer on a positive note at the Eastern National Livestock Judging Contest in Timonium, Md., where she was third high individual in judging beef cattle and helped the team to be high team in beef cattle. She had a very successful contest as she was the high individual judging sheep, high individual in oral reasons, and eventually was named the high collegiate individual overall.

Stacey had a successful day at the Main Event Livestock Judging Contest in Urbana, Ohio, as she placed 4th in oral reasons and finished 6th overall in the contest. Stacey continued to lead her Penn State teammates throughout the season at contests in Harrisburg, Kansas City and Louisville.

Stacey grew up on a small family farm in Tunkhannock, where she was an active member of 4-H for 11 years in Susquehanna and Wyoming counties. She was the president of the Baconeers 4-H Swine Club and the Blazing Saddles 4-H Horse and Pony Club. She was also a member of the DES 4-H Dairy Club and was on the Susquehanna County 4-H Livestock Judging Team. Stacey plans to graduate in December and continue her studies in equine reproductive physiology and pursue a career in equine veterinary medicine.

Stacey's parents are Ron and Sally Sands of Tunkhannock, Pa., and her brother, Ronnie, is a senior at Tunkhannock High School and is also planning to study dairy and animal science at Penn State. Stacey's grandparents are Jim Welch and Jean Welch, Jim Sands and the late Mildred Sands, all of Tunkhannock.

Stacey Sands, second from right, won the James E. Work Livestock Judging Award. Dr. Erskine H. Cash, undergraduate advising coordinator in dairy and animal science, James E. Work and his wife Joanne, Stacey Sands, and Keith A. Bryan, coach, Penn State Livestock Judging Team.

Survey Looks At Agricultural Chemical Use

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — If you're a soybean, wheat, or fruit grower, you may be asked to participate in a survey of chemical use being conducted by the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service in cooperation with Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

The data are being collected in support of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's National Agricultural Pesticide Impact Assessment Program (NAPIAP).

"When regulators are considering decisions on agrochemical cancellations, tolerances, and other aspects of pesticide labeling and product registration, they seek information on patterns of use, economic benefits, and other factors," said William Hoffman, senior extension associate in Penn State's Pesticide Education Program "NAPIAP fulfills these requests with data collected from surveys such as this.

"By participating in the survey, growers will be promoting informed regulatory decision-making affecting the pesticides they use," Hoffman said. "The data also will help us to determine the kinds of information and educational materials growers need on topics such as seed usage, tillage and integrated pest management."

The more than 600 growers selected to participate in the survey will be asked about chemicals used, acres treated, rates applied, integrated pest management practices, and grower characteristics. A typical interview lasts about an hour, and producers are encouraged to have their agricultural chemical use records on hand to help the interview go quickly and smoothly. Individual grower information will be kept strictly confidential.

"Farmers have a direct stake on responding to the survey," said Hoffman. "For instance, some fruit growers rely on several minor-use pesticides because they have no alternative. Accurate pesticide usage information is needed for the re-registration of chemicals for minor-use crops.

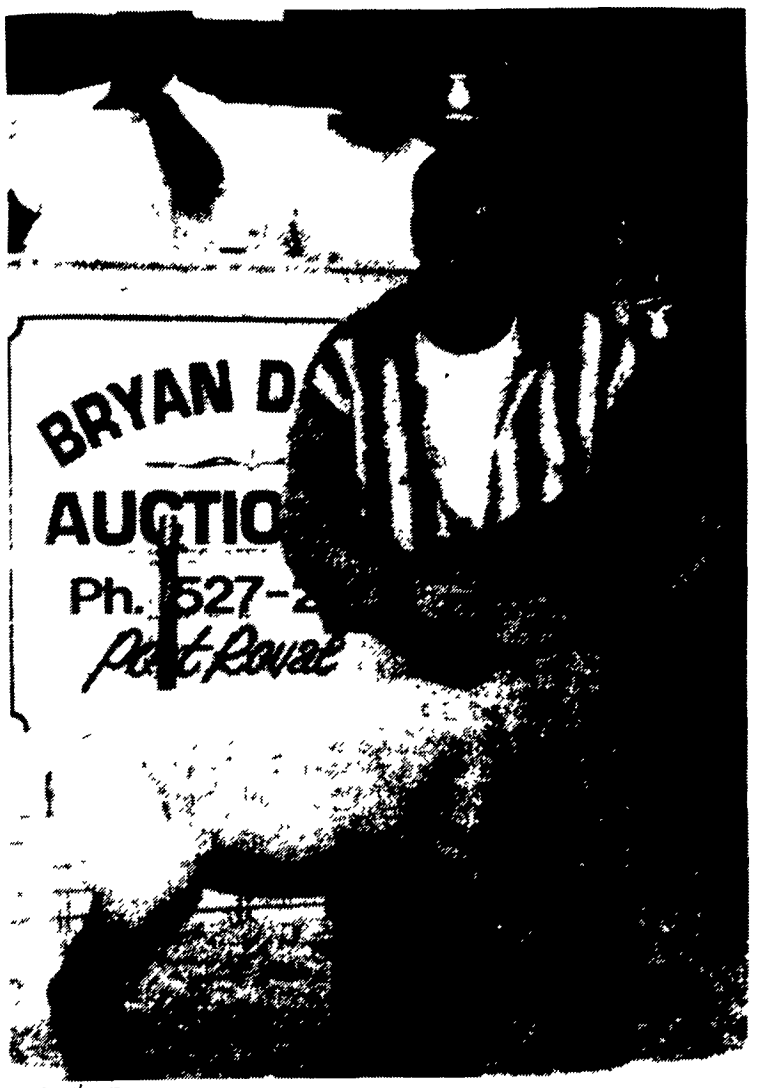
"Information on usage patterns also influences manufacturers' decisions on whether to submit a product for re-registration," he said. "Pesticide use data are an important factor in the approval process."

Following the collection and analysis of survey data, state and national estimates of agricultural chemical use by the target grower groups will be published in mid-1998.

FFA'ers Compete In Career Development Events

BEAVER SPRINGS (Snyder Co.) — The SUN Area FFA dairy and livestock-judging FFA career development events were held recently at the Beaver Community Fair.

In the livestock judging event, West Snyder FFA Team A, consisting of Luke Zerby, Michele Fetterolf, and Brandon Herman, won first place. The livestock judging team judged market steers, hogs, market lambs, and a class of breeding sheep. Oral reasons were given to the official.



Luke Zerby was the winner of the SUN Area FFA Livestock Judging Career Development Event for the third consecutive year. Zerby, West Snyder FFA and SUN Area FFA president, is shown here with his champion market lamb at the Beaver Community Fair.

On an individual basis in the livestock judging event, blue ribbons were earned by Luke Zerby, Brandon Herman, Michele Fetterolf, Jessica Catherman, and Dustin Herman who placed first, second, third, sixth, and eigth, respectively. Chris Foor competed and earned a white ribbon.

In the dairy judging event, Team A, consisting of Jennifer McWilliams, Jenna Straub, and Brandon Brower placed second. Members judged Holstein and Jersey dairy cow and heifer classes. Oral reasons were given to the contest official. On an individual basis, Jennifer McWilliams and Jennifer Balanitcz placed first and fourth with blue ribbons. Jenna Straub and Brandon Brower earned red ribbons. Joshua Ewing and Sandy Opdyke earned white ribbons.

On Wednesday, Oct. 15, the West Snyder FFA Chapter traveled to Mifflinburg to compete additional SUN Area FFA Career Development Events. These events included tractor driving, land judging, and forestry. In the tractor driving event, the students backed a four-wheel wagon into an area that was four inches wider than the wagon. They also took a written test and demonstrated tractor maintenance proficiency. Doug Boop placed third with a red ribbon and Ross Mitchell earned a white ribbon in this event.

The land judging event consisted of judging four different soil profiles. Kate Heeter, Jennifer McWilliams, and Jeremiah Kuhns earned red ribbons. Jessica Catherman, Brandon Heckman, and Sandy Opdyke earned white ribbons.

In the forestry event, FFA members identified trees and forestry tools measured trees to estimate board foot volume and took a written test. In the forestry event, Shane Eia placed ninth and Jessica Walter placed fourteenth with a red ribbon. White ribbon winners included Carolyn Howard, Nicole Tyson, Heidi Good, and James Wright.

F.O.4 September Milk Average Price $12.99

ALEXANDRIA, Va — Middle Atlantic Order Market Administrator Rex F. Lothrop recently announced a September 1997 weighted average milk price of $12.99 per hundredweight.

The weighted average differential price was 12 cents per hundredweight and the producer nonfat milk solids (NFMS) price was $1.01 per pound.

The weighted average price was up to 29 cents from August but was $3.57 lower than a year earlier.

The producer NFMS price was down 10 cents from last September. The nonfat milk solids price, applicable to handler payments, was $1.0172 per pound for the month, down 10.35 cents from last year.

The gross value of September producer milk, adjusted to 3.5 percent butterfat was $61.6 million, compared with $81.2 million a year ago.

Mr. Lothrop said that producer receipts totaled 478 million pounds during September, a decrease of 15.9 milllion pounds from last September, and the average daily delivery of 3,396 pounds per producer increased 274 pounds or 8.8 percent from a year earlier.

A total of 4,692 producers supplied Order 4 handlers during the month, a decrease of 580 from a year ago.

Class I producer milk totaled 248.6 million pounds and was down 27.5 million pounds, or 10 percent from last September. Class I milk accounted for 52 percent of total producer milk receipts during the month, compared with 55.91 percent in September 1996.

The average NFMS test of producer milk was 8.69 percent, up from 8.60 percent the previous year. The average butterfat test of producer milk was 3.56 percent, down from 3.61 percent in September 1996.

Middle Atlantic Order pool handlers reported Class I in-area milk sales of 193.1 million pounds during September, a decrease of 6.6 percent from a year earlier, after adjustment to eliminate variation due to calendar composition.

Scenic Mountain Co-Op Continues Growth

WYSOX (Bradford Co.) — Scenic Mountain Milk Producers Cooperative held its annual meeting recently here at the Bonanza Restaurant.

Attendance was down somewhat because of a great day for filling silo, but the enthusiasm of the members present made up for the lack in numbers.

Jim Broschart, Dushore, president, led the meeting. He welcomed the new members in attendance. The members voted to pay a patronage dividend to all members for milk shipped during the fiscal year that ended Aug. 31. Scenic Mountain Co-op has a reliable market that pays above average premiums and does not require members to contribute equity payments.

LaVerne McCarty, of Forksville, co-op manager, discussed the desire to attract new members that produce quality milk to the co-op, availing them of Scenic Mountain's quality market. He also pointed out that United Ag Services provides incentive payments to its members who recruit new members for the co-op.

Jim Patsos of United Ag Services discussed current market conditions and outlook. He also presented quality awards to the top quality producers for this year. Bob Stoll of Rome, placed first. Jim and Georgie Broschart tied with Duane and Betty Reibson of Forksville for second.

Judy Oliver (Mrs. Ronald) of Meshoppen, was elected to the board of directors and as secretary/treasurer. She replaces Robin Fiester of Forksville as secretary/treasurer. Robin has filled that position since the Scenic Mountain Co-Op organized. The members expressed their appreciation to Robin for her fine efforts over the last several years.

New York Grange Elects

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. — New York's Ontario County resident Bruce Croucher has been re-elected master of the New York State Grange, the state's largest rural/fraternal organization.

Croucher, a retired school teacher, was recently named to the post in a unanimous vote by delegates to the organization's convention in Binghamton.

Croucher had just completed his first two-year term, and has pledged to continue to lead the 14,000-member organization in lobbying efforts on behalf of the state's dairy farmers.

The Grange has formally endorsed the adoption of the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact, an agreement that would allow the establishment of milk prices above the Federal Order price.

The Grange believes adoption of the compact is essential to the future of the family farm in New York State, since farmers produce milk at a loss. Some are even dipping into life savings to stay in business.

The provisions of the compact still must be approved by the state legislature and signed into law by Gov. George Pataki. Six New England states now participate, and its members are paid about $1.50 more than the federal rate.

More than 190 delegates concluded four days of business here Tuesday, and along the way they considered some 100 policy resolutions submitted by Granges from across the state. The resolutions covered such issues as agriculture, conservation, education, and taxation.

Resolutions adopted are considered Grange policy for the coming year. Wording supporting the state's joining of the dairy compact was passed last year and reaffirmed during this year's session.

Dear M.M. Weaver & Sons:

1997 marks my 5th year custom harvesting. This year I chopped over 1,500 acres of hay and 1,800 acres of corn.

I appreciate the versatility of the 860 Claas which enabled me to chop 3rd cutting hay on one client's farm in the morning and easily switch to chopping corn on another farm that afternoon. A large fuel capacity, auto-lube system and blade sharpening from the cab conserve energy and time, precious commodities in seasonal work where every minute counts.

The RU 450 is a time-saving assest where the conservation practice of strip farming is necessary due to the hilly terrain. It would have been impossible to cover as many acres as quickly with a conventional cornhead.

The 860 Claas proves to be a totally reliable machine backed up by the efficient service, technical support, and dedicated personnel that you provide.

I thank you for the important part you have in my growing custom harvesting business.

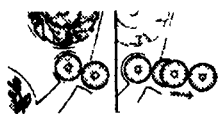
The corn cracker can be changed in 5 minutes to switch from corn to hay The Jaguar s efficient processing produces quality silage for higher milk production



The efficient cutting system has a full width metal detector, 30" wide chevron cutting drum and full width 8-blade accelerator

The unique top-to-back cooling system with rotary air screen assures excellent, clean cooling

Service is easy because compartment covers quickly swing open to provide easy access to the engine and cooling system

The operator can safely sharpen the chopping knives and precisely adjust the shearbar from the driver s seat automatically

Maryland Ag Officials Visit Korea

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Lewis R. Riley has announced that the Maryland Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with the United States Livestock Genetics Export, Inc. (USLGE), has just conducted a successful trade mission to South Korea.

The USLGE is a private cooperator with the U.S. Department of Agriculture to promote international export of United States livestock and genetics. Members of the trade mission team included Timothy Capps, vice president of the Maryland Horse Breeders Association; Carlos Garcia, Maryland Thoroughbred breeder and trainer; Dr. Henry A. Virts, deputy secretary, Maryland Department of Agriculture; and Errol Small, chief of international marketing, Maryland Department of Agriculture.

The team presented two trade seminars while in South Korea, one in Seoul and the other in Cheju. Also in attendance at the seminars was Phillip Scholl, agriculture trade officer to South Korea and members of the American embassy staff. The Korean Racing Association, which is run by the South Korean government, is rapidly expanding the racing industry in their country and is continuing to buy Thoroughbreds from Maryland.

"The seminars were informative and productive and are already paying back big dividends because Korean inspectors are already in Maryland to select 52 brood mares and three stallions worth $3 million. The future of this relationship between Korea and Maryland looks very good for the Maryland Thoroughbred industry," said Riley.

The trade mission also offered an opportunity for the representatives of the U.S. Thoroughbred industry to see the Korean Thoroughbreds, training, breeding and racing facilities, and most importantly to meet with the important people in the Korean Racing Association the Seoul Race Horse Owners Association, the Seoul Race Course Trainers and Jockeys Association and the Korean Thoroughbred Breeders Association.

For more information on the trade mission to South Korea, contact Errol Small, Maryland Department of Agriculture, International Marketing, 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis, MD 21401, (401) 841-5770.

Land O'Lakes Dairy Development Program Now Available In Mid-Atlantic

SOUTHAMPTON, Pa.— Land O'Lakes members in the Mid-Atlantic area interested in modernizing and expanding their dairy operations now have a resource through the cooperative's Dairy Development Program.

Begun in 1990, the Dairy Development Program is designed to help members achieve their business, profitability and lifestyle goals through better business and management practices.

"The program provides the consulting resources dairy farmers need to build their future and grow their dairy businesses," said Steve Watrin, director, Dairy Development. "We work with farmers from the ground up, from development of the business plan to potential expansion of facilities through implementation of the new business."

As part of the program, Land O'Lakes members work one-on-one with a Dairy Business Specialist. The specialists provide expertise in several areas, including business and financial planning, facility design, waste management, and feed storage and handling.

Three Dairy Business Specialists have been hired to work with Land O'Lakes members in the Mid-Atlantic area. The specialists are Harold Moyer, Wyalusing, Pa.; Rick Ridgway, York, Pa.; and Tina Shirey, Beaver Springs, Pa.

To date, nearly 100 Land O'Lakes members have repositioned their businesses, ranging in size from 150 cows to 1,350 cows. Once projects are completed, members have continued access to Dairy Development specialists for on-going consultations.

For more information about the Dairy Development Program, contact Mike John, manager of new business development, at 1-800-645-6455. John will be coordinating the program in the Mid-Atlantic area.

Land O'Lakes is a national food and agricultural cooperative owned by farmers, ranchers and member cooperatives. It provides agricultural inputs to nearly 1,000 member cooperatives supplying 300,000 farmers, serves more than 11,000 direct producer-members, and manufactures and markets a wide variety of food products.

MDIA To Meet Nov. 18

FREDERICK, Md. — The Maryland Dairy Industrial Association (MDIA), organized only a year ago, has scheduled its inaugural meeting as an all-day event on Nov. 18 here at the Holiday Inn near Francis Scott Key Mall.

All interested persons are invited to attend, whether paid members or not, according to Myron Wilhide, interim president.

A Carroll County dairy farmer, Wilhide notes that the day's program will provide a taste of profitable management techniques, legislative outlook, computer know-how, and personal motivation.

All of this is aimed to help dairy farmers and agribusiness people take heed of the ancient Greek axiom "It's a bad plan that can't be changed."

Here's a rundown of speakers and topics:

• Dr. Brian Perkins, Dairy Management Services, Inc. (Vermont), "Feeding for Profitability" and "Building Design and Remodeling."

• Dr. John Adams, National Milk Producers Federation, Arlington, Va.; "National Outlook, Legislative and Regulatory Update."

• William Prokop, DVM, Attica Veterinary Associates, Attica, N.Y.: "Working In a Team Attitute."

• David M. Kohl, Ph.D., professor of farm business management at Virginia Tech: "Inventing Profit for Tomorrow's Dairy Farm."

• Bran Thompson of Bolivar, Md. (Frederick County): annual banquet inspirational speaker.

Mark Varner, extension dairy science specialist at the University of Maryland, will be available in the educational exhibit area during the conference to demonstrate what dozens of dairy producers call "the best dairy information source I've seen in years."

Varner will be talking about Dairy-L, an Internet electronic mail group that is considered the most successful Internet application in agriculture. Dairy-L is hosted by the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service. Any dairy producer with Internet access can learn how to sign on for this free service. Those without computers can post questions on the network at any county extension service office in the state.

Registration information for the upcoming MDIA meeting is contained in the November issue of the association's Udder Facts newsletter, now being mailed to dairy farmers throughout the state, or call Harold Lenhart, the meeting chairman, at (301) 898-9350.

Kennard-Dale Breaks Ground With Ag Science Curriculum

FAWN GROVE (York Co.) — In an era of hybrids, biogenetics, cloning, food safety concerns, and environmental issues, the arena of agricultural science offers an exciting alternative to the vocational ag curriculum.

Kennard-Dale High School is embarking on a futuristic course offering a new era of curriculum studies to challenge a larger percentage of the student population.

"Seeking to meet their science requirements for graduation, our secondary scholars are turned on and challenged by hands-on activities, scientific experimentation, technical development, design and construction, diversity — that can be met only in the realm of ag sciences where challenge and change are a given," said agricultural and education teacher Jennifer Gabryluk.

Spurred on by the ag industry interests in the South Eastern School District, the agriculture department has risen to the challenge of revitalizing its course offerings to attract a wider variety of students to prepare them for college and the countless agricultural careers that are clambering for their attention: horticulture science, natural resource management, and veterinary science, to name a few.

Guided by an Ag Advisory Council of 15 community leaders and five representatives of the high school, the first major project will be construction of a greenhouse. This $5,000 project will be totally funded by local business and residents' donations. It will be housed within the existing courtyard of the high school, protected from the weather, and with easy access to electricity, propane, and drainage necessary for complete greenhouse functioning.

Educational purposes will include study of plants and growth patterns, soils and fertility requirements, integrated pest management, genetics in populations, morphology of plants and plant cell composition, geotropism and phototropism, identification of plant species, plant propagation, as well as business principles in running a successful greenhouse operation — record keeping, marketing, and inventory management.

Added benefits cover landscaping techniques and implementation, creating an aesthetically pleasing courtyard, and complete care of the area during the school year, freeing up maintenance workers for more pending matters. Both Gabryluk and her associate ag instructor Vince Hall believe that it can also provide additional income for the program.

Robert Gross heads up the greenhouse committee, which has been researching the feasibility of the 20-inch x 40-inch facility. "Now that the plans have been approved, all we need to do is raise the money. I'm ready to do what I can to excite others about this project."

The actual greenhouse will incorporate the principles of design and construction of ag and residential buildings. Ag educator Hall is anticipating an added dimension to his lesson plans. "The project will allow my students to practice skills learned in our construction classes. They will provide raised beds for the plants in the greenhouse. Hopefully, my natural resource management class can be expanded to incorporate hydroponics and aquaculture in the new structure."

Ag Advisory Board Chairman Marlyn Flaharty is a prime mover and shaker behind these positive efforts to beef up curriculum quality and revitalize the programs so vital for consumer understanding about the importance of the community and nation's food system. "This is the first time anyone's tried to raise money for academics within the agriculture, business and local community.

"November will be the big drive month for receiving contributions that will be used to install the greenhouse," he announced. "Any extra money will go toward equipment and textbooks — whatever is necessary to run a successful program. We are grateful that the school board has approved the project, and after the fund raising campaign, we hope to break ground by January 1998. We intend to tap past alumni who have gone through the previous KD program," said Flaharty.

Gabryluk has been on board less than a year, but feels an empowerment coming from this groundswell of support from administration, teachers, students, her ag advisory committee, and now the community. "Enrollment in our courses has shot up so dramatically, we can hardly house them all. Interest is definitely there. And the students actually realize the courses we are offering them have relevance to their lives. It's an exciting time to be a teacher."

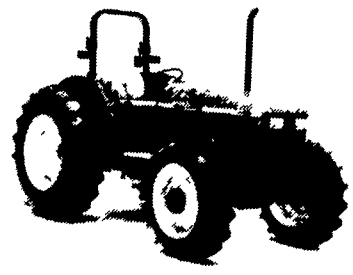
Deere's Utility Tractors Offer High Performance

MOLINE, Ill. — The John Deere 5000 Ten Series utility tractors offer commercial users enhanced performance at highly competitive prices.

The series replaces John Deere's popular 5000 Series and offers high-torque John Deere engines with more horsepower. Updated to meet EPA emission requirements, these tractors work harder and burn fuels cleaner.

Grounds care professionals can choose from four transmissions, each improved for even smoother shifting. To satisfy PTO needs, there's an independent 540 PTO, plus an optional new shiftable 540E (available on SyncShuttle™ transmissions only). The 540E lets operators do light-duty PTO work in economy mode to save fuel and reduce noise.

When there's loader work to be done, single-lever hydraulic control allows operators to run all loader functions with just one hand. Hydrostatic steering provides fingertip control, even with a full loader bucket.



The John Deere 5000 Ten Series Utility Tractors offer commercial users enhanced performance at highly competitive prices. The 5210, 5310, and 5410 feature a redesigned operator station to make these tractors even easier to operate.

The 5210, 5310 and 5410 feature a redesigned operator station to make these tractors even easier to operate. An optional cab is available for all three models.

Corn Head Smooth, Fast, Durable

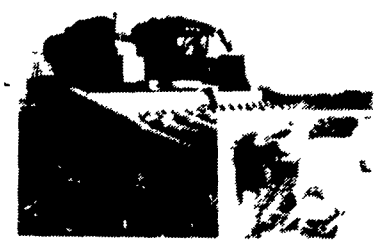
NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — The new Model 996 corn head from New Holland gives growers more corn in less time, thanks to its new-generation design and polyethylene construction.

"The unique low-profile point design allows the '996' to get under downed corn and pick it up more efficiently than competitive corn heads," said New Holland product management. "And the shielding flips up without tools for complete access, providing the easiest access to the row units of anybody in the industry."

Customer focus groups and several prototype trials run with customers helped New Holland designers create a more durable design that reduces overall maintenance and improves resale value, the company noted.

The surface of the low-profile shields, fenders and points — all made from an innovative polyethylene material — is slippery, allowing for smooth, fast feeding and increased ground speeds. And because the polyethylene construction absorbs impact, ears don't bounce out of the corn head. The result is less ear loss and more capacity. Also, the "996" is more durable than previous models. The points, fenders and row unit covers are yellow polyethylene all the way through, so dings and damage don't show. They will never rust and never need painting, giving owners fewer hassles and higher resale value.

Quick latches on the row unit shields, fenders and points make transport and maintenance easy. And once the shielding is flipped up, convenient props hold the shields in position so the operator can work quickly and confidently. The fenders and row unit points also feature easy height adjustment, without tools.



New Holland Model 996 corn head uses innovative polyethylene material on shields, fenders, and points for a smooth, fast-feeding surface that never rusts or needs painting. Two-piece cantilevered design offers unmatched service access.

The New Holland Model 996 features heavy-duty cast iron row unit gearboxes to drive and support the stalk rolls. Stalk rolls are heat-treated and straight-fluted for more aggressive feeding. The unique two-piece cantilevered design reduces replacement costs and improves serviceability. And the easy removal and installation mean it is no problem to change between standard stalk rolls and knife rolls.

Additional flexibility is provided by optional hydraulic deck plate adjustment for different stalk sizes, improving performance in varying crop conditions. Gearcase-driven row units provide added reliability and improved serviceability, while the oil-bath row unit drive provides long, dependable operation.

The "996" corn head is available in many row and spacing combinations for use with New Holland TR™ 88 and TR™ 98 Twin Rotor ® combines, New Holland TX™ 66 and TX™ 68 combines, and for mounting on the New Holland FX Series self-propelled forage harvesters.

Case introduces three new 2300 Series Case IH Axial-Flow® combines the 2344, 2366 and 2388 which include key improvements and maintain the unique benefits of rotary technology.

"For the past 20 years, Axial-Flow combine users have enjoyed greater harvesting efficiency and higher grain quality, thanks to the threshing benefits of rotary technology. With the 2300 Series, we've added increased power, durability and operator comfort to the best combines in the business," said Kelly Kravig, marketing manager, crop harvesting/advanced farming systems.

Increased horsepower in the Case IH 2366 and 2388 means increased productivity. Power for the 2366 has been increased 25 hp to 240 hp. Similarly, the 2388 has been increased 20 hp and is now rated at 280 hp. In addition, the power curves are designed to improve response across the typical operating range.

Case has introduced Advanced Farming System (AFS) hardware and software offerings.

Case introduces six new Case IH tractors, ranging from 40 to 84 PTO horsepower. These versatile tractors, including the CX90, are designed to perform a wide variety of farmyard and field tasks.

Updated hardware includes a new high performance differential GPS receiver which allows AFS users increased flexibility in choosing a positioning system. The new Case IH/Trimble differential GPS receiver offers both statellite differential correction and free differential GPS signals from government-operated navigation stations located along major North American waterways.

"With the ability to switch from satellite to beacon service, operators have the flexibility to choose which type of signal best suits their needs," said Paul Hamm, marketing application specialist.

Case also has broadened its software offerings with several new programs designed to support all levels of use: from the beginning operator interested in converting the first year of yield data into maps to the advanced user looking for ways to fine-tune management decisions.

With six power choices ranging from 40 to 84 PTO horsepower, these versatile tractors are designed to perform a wide variety of farmyard and field tasks. All of the models — the CX50, CX60, CX70, CX80, CX90 and CX100 — are available in flat platform or cab configurations. Straddle style tractors, identified as C Series models, are also available in all sizes. Options include mechanical front drive and loaders, as well as a selection of transmission choices.

"These versatile tractors allow operators to choose the equipment combination that best serves their needs," said Bill Weber, Case marketing application specialist.

Additional new products in the hay and forage family include the 8590 large square baler. It features a pre-pack chamber, intermittent stuffer and double knotters that produce high quality bales 4 foot by 4 foot and up to 9 feet long. It's ideal for commercial operations. The new 8870 SP windrower features an all-new cab with in-cab swath/windrow control, multi-function propulsion lever, and floating monitor and control console, similar to Case IH Axial-Flow combines.

The 3850 disk harrow retains the Case IH easy-pulling characteristic provided by the shallow-concavity disk blades offered throughout the line. Improvements to this model include 25 percent stronger micro-alloy steel rockshaft and additional bearing support. Its NitroSteel® cylinder rods are 300 percent more corrosion resistant than chrome.

Hitch Provides Supreme Towing Ease

GOODFIELD, Ill. — DMI Inc., a manufacturer of towing systems for more than 30 years, recently introduced the new Quic 'n Easy 2-inch receiver hitch for full-size pickup trucks.

This hitch provides easy positioning of a "spring-cushioned" receiver to provide a fast hook-up and smooth, easy towing.

The swing/extension pattern of the receiver extends 7 inches and swings 12 inches from the frame. This eliminates the need for perfect truck positioning and allows for a one-person hookup. Release handles move independently for swing and extension, and recessed slide plates prevent receiver tow-bar hang-up when centering.

The jerking motion caused by starting, stopping and braking during towing causes stress on truck, trailer and driver. The unique spring package of the Quic 'n Easy takes the "push/Pull" out of towing, thus reducing stress on the transmission, differential, brakes, suspension and frame. (The receiver has up to 4 inches of travel forward and backward, which activates the spring-cushion package when needed.) The modular steel frame adds strength to the towing system to meet and exceed Class IV certification (1,000 pounds tongue and 10,000 pounds towing.)

This hitch provides easy positioning of a "spring cushioned" receiver to provide a fast hook-up and smooth, easy towing.

New Liquid Manure Transports For Miller Pro

Miller Pro has introduced a new line of liquid manure transports including four models with 2,300-, 3,000-, 4,200-, or 5,200-gallon capacities.

ST. NAZIANZ, Wis. — Miller Pro has introduced a new line of liquid manure transports including four models with 2,300-, 3,000-, 4,200-, or 5,200-gallon capacities.

The round tank design with domed ends provides extra capacity and maximum strength. Forward slope design maintains drawbar weight as tank is emptied.

The large, square 30 inch x 30 inch fill opening is in the rear. The combination of rear fill, forward slope design and front unload prevents settling in the dead end.

Front-mounted pump allows over-the-top discharge and a short drive line, 540 or 1000 RPM. There is in-tank agitation, full pressure injection, and rear or side discharge. Over-the-top spreading prevents accidental dumping of loads. Front-mounted level indicator is especially useful when injection units are being used. Hydraulic drive motor is optional.

The two larger models use semitrailer axles and brakes with up to 2-1/2 times as much brake capability as disk brakes. They are hydraulically actuated from the cab, providing braking forward and reverse, uphill and downhill. The two smaller models have hydraulically actuated ag brakes, also cab controlled, with optional choice of the semitrailer brake and axle system. Adjustable axle setting allows adjusting of weight on drawbar, and rebalancing when injection units are added.

Is Your Corn Getting Enough to Eat? Use Plant Tissue Analysis To Find Out

WOOSTER, Ohio — It's a good time of year to see if your corn is getting enough to eat. And a good way to do this is plant tissue analysis.

"Plant tissue analysis is an easily used tool that can provide information about the levels of nutrients in plants," said Maurice Watson, head of Ohio State University's Research Extension Analytical Laboratory, or REAL. "The results can help you make important decisions about next year's crop."

And the best time to sample is now, Watson said — with Ohio corn at or near the initial silking stage.

"Any later and the results aren't as useful," he said.

Watson said plant tissue analysis can help evaluate a fertilizer program, for example. Is your corn getting what it needs to produce a good crop? Is it getting too much?

Plant tissue analysis can also help identify problem areas in a field, whether from acidity or too much or not enough of a nutrient.

And it's a useful follow up to the pre-sidedress nitrate soil test, or PSNT. Relating the results of a PSNT to the nitrogen level in plant tissue can help evaluate a nitrogen fertilizer program.

Ohio farmers were especially concerned about their corn getting enough nitrogen after the state's cold, wet spring. Watson said. Plant tissue analysis can reduce their worry and help prevent problems, he said.

Finally, Watson said, "Plant tissue analysis should be considered a must for evaluating plant nutrient status when manure has been applied to the soil."

Plant tissue analysis is one of many services offered by the REAL, which is located on the Wooster campus of the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center. The cost is $14. The results are returned in three or four days.

Included are measurements of the following nutrients: nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium, calcium, magnesium, iron, manganese, boron, zinc and copper. Sulfur can be measured for an additional fee. An interpretation of these results indicates whether there's enough or not enough of each nutrient.

Watson said to take these steps to sample your corn:

- Sample the ear leaf of the corn plant at initial silking.
- Collect 10 samples. This should provide enough material for the test.
- Select the samples at random across the field, unless you want to focus on a problem area in that field.
- If you focus on a problem area, collect samples from a normal, part of the field, too — a place where the crop seems OK. Keep these samples separate from a normal part of the field, too — a place where the crop seems OK. Keep these samples separate from the problem-area samples. Submit both batches for testing.

Plant analysis kits are available from the REAL or county Extension offices in Ohio and Indiana.

For more information, call (330) 263-3760, visit http://www/oardc.ohio-state.edu/www/depts/realhp.html on the World Wide Web, or visit the lab in person. It's in Hayden Hall on OARDC's Wooster campus, 1680 Madison Ave. The campus entrance is just south of U.S. 30.

DASHING THROUGH THE SNOW

The storm will pass. And thankfully, so will a Kubota snowblower. Try our snowblower attached to a Kubota B-Series or L-Series tractor for a snow removal team that's hard to beat.

They are a cinch to operate using the tractor's 3-point hitch as a hydraulic lifting system. Clear snow from driveways, roads or parking lots. Break up and clear heavy drifts. A special heavy-duty rear-mount snowblower is a recent addition to Kubota's B- and L-Series line-up.

So before the forecast calls for snow, make a dash to your Kubota dealer.

Students Produce Nutrient Management Video

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — When you combine seven high school students, a noted Hollywood character actor with 20 years experience, professional video camera operators, and the topic of manure, you get some interesting results.

That's the word from Norm Conrad, senior research associate in the agronomy department of Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, who has worked with a group of students from Mifflinburg High School to develop an 18-minute educational video on how to reduce manure runoff and nutrient losses from barnyards.

The final product, narrated by and starring actor Matthew Faison, premiered when the students presented it to the commission during their meeting in Carlisle on July 24. Faison has appeared in a wide variety of films, television movies and series, including "Silver," "Bird," "NYPD Blue," and "M*A*S*H."

Sophomores Val Stover and Ben Falls, juniors Jeremy Allen and Celeste Conrad, and seniors Pete Holmes, Mike Sauers, and Marty Piorkowski researched, developed the storyboard, scripted, and assisted with filming and editing the program.

The State Conservation Commission funded the production of the Better Barnyard Management video as part of the education and outreach effort to help implement Pennsylvania's nutrient management legislation.

The video will be used over the next several years as a training resource to educate farmers, agricultural consultants and nutrient management planners on how to identify problems and design solutions to nutrient losses from baryards and feedlots.

The students interviewed technical experts, developed the storyline, and presented their concept to commission staff before filming the video. "Their diverse backgrounds helped them to solidify their vision and yielded a quality video production," said Conrad.

"Each of these students already excelled in their respective academis, athletic and artistic areas of interest," he said. "We had a football team captian, a participant in the Pennsylvania Governor's School for the Agricultural Sciences, a 4-H teen leader, an FFA speaking contest winner, and a yearbook editor and graphic designer. Three were regional music award winners."

To ensure that the students received academic credit for their work, Conrad developed a course outline and lesson plans, assigned textbook readings from the College of Agricultural Sciences' agricultural communications course, and graded quarterly examinations.

But Conrad says the best measure of involvement was watching these young people work with sophisticated equipment and professional media staff to continually refine and improve the video. "I also learned something by working with the students," he said. "If you recruit the best people, give them all the support they need to get the job done, and don't worry about claiming the credit, you can get a lot more done."

Copies of the videotape will be distributed to county conservation districts, Penn State Cooperative Extension county offices, and USDA field offices. For more information about the videotape, contact Norm Conrad at (717) 783-9704.

Are You Getting Your Money's Worth?

If You're Not Liming Properly, You're Throwing Away Part Of Every Fertilizer Dollar.

By correcting soil acidity, limestone frees-up desirable nutrients that feed your crop. Plus, limestone ties up toxic elements that reduce crop production.

High nitrogen use in modern farming practices acidifies the soil quickly. This limits your crop vigor and yields. Therefore, today it's more important than ever to lime according to soil test results. Proper liming gives you the most from your fertilizer dollar.

Neef Named to Field Staff

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Mike Neef has been appointed as the American Hereford Association's (AHA) field representative for the northeastern U.S. He began his duties in mid-September.

Neef will work with Hereford breeders in Ohio, Indiana, Wisconsin, Kentucky, Michigan, Virginia, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Maine, Vermont, Massachusetts, Maryland, Delaware, Rhode Island, Connecticut, and New Hampshire. He'll represent the association and the AHA's Certified Hereford Beef program, as well as manage advertising accounts for Hereford World magazine.

Mike Neef

Neef grew up on a livestock and grain farming operation in east-central Illinois where he was active in FFA and 4-H. He gained his animal science degree from Parkland Junior College in 1986 and was a member of the school's intercollegiate livestock judging team.

Following graduation, he worked with a purebred cattle operation in Nebraska until 1993, then managed a large commercial cow-calf operation in Florida. He was with a 2,000-head backgrounding operation in Virginia and most recently managed a registered Angus operation in Illinois.

"Mike brings a wide range of solid beef cattle experience to our association," said Craig Ludwig, AHA's director of marketing. "His hands-on knowledge of both registered and commercial cattle production at all levels will certainly benefit the Hereford breeders in his territory."

Westfalia Systemat Now Westfalia Dairy Systems, Inc.

ELK GROVE VILLAGE, Ill. – Westfalia Systemat has changed its name to Westfalia Dairy Systems, Inc.

According to President Dirk Hejnal, "The reasons for the change are simple. The new name clearly identifies the nature of our business and areas of expertise."

Hejnal said, "The change to Westfalia Dairy Systems, Inc., is one of many changes for the company. We restructured our organization and added new products, including the new Autorotor Carousel Parlor. These changes have made a direct contribution to a very successful 1997 and very bright prospects for the coming year."

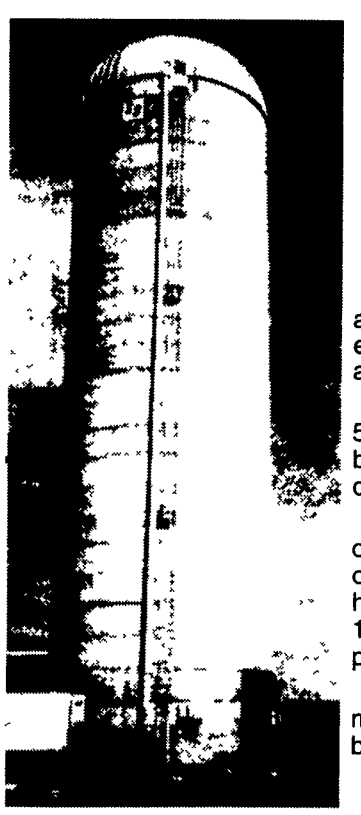
"Something Old"
Poured concrete silos...
since 1908



"Something New" For the 90's... and we continue to grow, and expand our products, and coverage area.

Tower silos now to hold up to 5000 tons of forage. But we still build a lot of 16', 18', 20', and 24' diameter silos.

1997 was one of the best years in our long history. Many thanks to our old and new customers, and we have several silos sold already for 1998. Give us a call to reserve your place on our schedule.

Silos for silage, haylage, hi-moisture corn. Top unloading and bottom unloading.

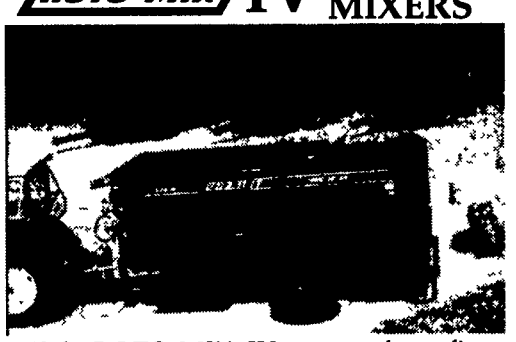
ROTO-MIX IV FEED MIXERS



With ROTO-MIX IV you reduce fines, minimize shrinkage, and eliminate dead spots. The gentle tumbling action mixes fragile flaked and high-moisture ingredients without grinding, resulting in a fluffier, more nutritional ration.

The ROTO-MIX end-to-end... side-to-side mixing system provides the most thorough TMR available, ensuring that your cattle will consume a balanced ration of nutrients in every pound of feed they eat.

$5 A GALLON FOR CHEMICAL-FREE MILK??

You don't have to go completely organic to sell chemical-free milk.

I did a survey & 80% of the people asked said that they would gladly pay double the regular price for chemical-free milk. That figures to be $5 a Gallon or More. All but two people asked said they would pay at least $4 a gal. The two that said no, both said they pay $10 a gallon for coffee or beer. The problem is; where to find chemical-free milk.

NO BST; NO BOVOTEC; NO ANTIBIOTICS OR OTHER MEDICATIONS FOR AT LEAST 6 MONTHS.

Some Dairymen are making arrangements to pasteurize & bottle their own milk. I am compiling info on where to get the equipment; what the law requires etc. I will send that information FREE if you will Print your Name & Address and send to the address below. Please Take Your Time & Print Very Legibly.

PURINA DAIRY HERD PROFILE

MID-VIEW FARM

For the Tucker family at Mid-View Farm, located near Jefferson, Maryland, feeding Purina feeds from the H.C. Summers dealership has been going on for generations. Not only has Purina feeds been the center of good business, friendship has also become part of this farm-family-Purina-dealer relationship.

It all started at the turn of the century when the Tucker family bought the farm and started a family tradition that now includes the fifth generation. Wayne and Georgia Tucker and son Stan, and daughter-in-law Sandy Tucker, now run the farm. Grand children, Justin 12, and Rebecca 10, make the fifth generation to live on the farm.

The Tuckers farm 450 acres and milk 180 cows in a double six parlor. The cows are housed in a free-stall barn that has been expanded to include bedding mattresses for greater cow comfort. They also raise 130 to 140 replacement heifers.

A TMR mix is fed to the milking cows with Purina Hi-O 36 percent concentrate and high moisture corn to balance the home grown forages. Five to 12 pounds of Purina's Tank Topper, an 18 percent complete feed, is fed in the parlor to the top cows according to production needs. In addition, one ounce of Dairyman's Edge, a new rumen enhancer to help dry matter intake is fed.

The registered herd of Holsteins has a 22,000 pound rolling herd average with individual cows milking up to 130 to 140 pounds per day. Right now the herd is averaging 75 to 79 pounds per cow per day.

While many management practices contribute to herd production and herd health, Stan believes their Purina feeding program has a lot to do with their good production. The feeding program is developed by Joe Stowers, dairy consultant for H.C. Summers.

"We have been using Purina feeds for a long time," Stan said. "It's a good fed that gets the job done at a competitive price."

Using the current prices for the TMR ingredients, feed cost is only $3.53 per cow per day.

"Sure, we can recommend Purina to other farmers," Stan said. "We have been with them for a long time, and we are getting more milk right now than we ever have before at this time of year."
